Ike Is Winning Battle Of Budget

Democrats Switch Plans For Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower appears to be well on the way toward chalking up considerable legislative success in the Democratic Congress.

As of now, Eisenhower looks like a sure winner in the battle of the budget. What began in January as an attack on what many Democrats called a "phony" balanced 77-billion-dollar budget has become in June a scramble to rival the President in making economies.

As an example of the reverse trend, Sen. George A. Smathers of Florida, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, predicted Congress will cut Eisenhower's budget requests by 1½ billion dollars.

Smathers contended in a radio-television program recorded for Florida stations that the Senate and House already have lopped $96 million dollars off of presidential money requests.

"About seven billion dollars worth of requests made by the administration remain to be voted on," he said. "I cannot help but feel that we're going to reduce that substantially—probably by a billion or 1½ billion dollars."

Because what is done about monetary requests affects almost every program, from foreign aid to domestic housing, Eisenhower probably will come closr to getting what he wants in all of these fields than what the majority of Democrats really would prefer.

Not much doubt remains now that Eisenhower struck a popular note with firm demands for a balanced budget.

The President's popularity has been enhanced by the upward swing of the economy. If he weren't barred from running again, a great many Democrats think he could be re-elected in 1960.

Ike Has Ideal Day For Golf

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — President Eisenhower shot his seventh round of golf in 11 days Saturday. It was an ideal day—cloudless, sunny, but not too warm.

Sunday the chief executive will wind up a weekend at his country estate and return to the White House to confer with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter on the stalemated, recessed foreign ministers conference at Geneva. First, he plans to attend church and then get in another round of golf.

Eisenhower's knee, injured in his football days at West Point, annoyed him when he went around the Gettysburg Country Club golf course Friday. But he wasn't complaining about the knee Saturday — only about his wood shots and long game.

Dalai Lama Charges Red China Plans To Swamp Tibetan Race

MUSSOORIE, India (AP) — The Dalai Lama charged Saturday that Communist China plans to settle five million Chinese in Tibet "to swamp the Tibetan race."

The self-exiled temporal and spiritual ruler of Tibet declared the present government in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital, "is nothing but a deceptive government with all powers in the hands of the Chinese. We people of Tibet will never recognize it."

The 23-year-old Buddhist king said he will never return to Lhasa until "I obtain the rights and powers which Tibet enjoyed and exercised prior to 1950"—the year the Chinese Communists took over the country.

In the meantime "wherever I am, I am accompanied by my government, which the Tibetan people recognize as the government of Tibet," the Dalai Lama said.

The Dalai Lama, who came to this hill station in northern India after an anti-Communist revolt last March, addressed his first news conference since taking up residence here. He read a statement in Tibetan to about 100 newsmen and others who gathered under a multicolored tent erected on the lawn of Birla House where he is living.

He then cheerfully answered more than 100 questions. He spoke through an interpreter.

After the Dalai Lama fled from his capital, the Red Chinese installed a rival, the Panchen Lama, as the head of a puppet regime. The Peiping government has said the Panchen Lama will be the temporal head until the Dalai Lama returns.

"The Panchen Lama has been under Chinese influence ever since his boyhood and has never enjoyed any freedom," the Dalai Lama said. "He has no alternative except to carry out the orders of the Chinese, because he has no powers."

In answer to questions, he said his government signed an agreement with Peiping in 1951 "at the point of a bayonet."

This agreement, providing for Tibetan self rule in local and internal affairs, was made after the Red Chinese invaded the country in 1950 and while they were threatening further military operations, he added.

The Dalai Lama said he would welcome a meeting between In-

Heiress Marries With Best Wishes Of Ex-Suitor Who Tried To Elope With Her

MINNEAPOLIS, Wis. (AP) — Heiress Jean Shevlin was married Saturday night with the gallant best wishes of a diehard ex-suitor who tried to elope with her a day before the wedding.

In a chapel filled with society figures, friends and relatives, Miss Shevlin, a 21-year-old graduate of Vassar, was wed to handsome Lt. Col. James Gerard, 45, an Army officer stationed in Paris.

A mile from the Westminster Presbyterian church where the marriage took place, Langdon P. Marvin Jr., 40, a congressional researcher from Washington, D.C. was ready to pack after issuing an explanatory statement.

Miss Shevlin told police in Mason City, Iowa, Friday that Marvin forced her to accompany him to Iowa against her will. She went along in fear of her life, she said.

Marvin told reporters in his hotel Saturday that he didn't abduct the Minneapolis society girl Friday morning when they drove to Iowa, that it was an elopement in which "Jean did not take the final step."

He wished her well and said he hoped they could continue to be good friends.

Miss Shevlin's wedding, Marvin said, had been arranged by her mother. He complained Mrs. Shevlin had prohibited Jean from seeing him.

Looking lovely and radiant in a full-length veil, the bride smiled as she entered the chapel and showed no excessive nervousness. She was reported to be in a high state of tension prior to the ceremoney because of the Iowa incident.

Gerard wore a black dress military uniform with gold braid. He gave her an affectionate kiss as they walked to their car after the short ceremony.

The newlyweds then were driven to a reception at the Woodhill Country Club.

Dr. Arnold Lowe, who officiated at the service, declined to permit reporters to talk to the bride immediately before the service.

Miss Shevlin told Iowa police she went to Marvin's hotel room Thursday night to tell him she intended to go through with her marriage to Gerard.

"After arriving, 6th graf ta55

"After arriving at his hotel room," she said, "we had a couple of cocktails and much conversation. I fell asleep and awoke at 4:30 a.m."

She said Marvin, who recently figured in the news for occupying rent-free office space in the Library of Congress for 11½ years, offered to take her home.

"When I observed he was not taking me home, I pleaded and begged and cried, but he didn't pay any attention," she said.

Upon their arrival here, she said, Marvin allowed her to make a telephone call to a Dr. Ching, a marriage counselor in Minneapolis.

"I was unable to reach Dr. Ching and tried to put a phone call through to my fiance who is on leave at Crystal Bay, Minn. Mr. Marvin immediately put the receiver down and I was unable to make the call," she said.

"A short time later he allowed me to attempt to make another call to Dr. Ching. I was unable to reach him but I did make a successful call to my fiance.

"Then Mr. Marvin took me to Park Hospital for a blood test, which I had. He insisted we go to Northwood (Iowa, 20 miles north of here) to get married by a justice of the peace.

While in Park Hospital, she said, she told a doctor of her plight and he helped her escape through a back door of the building. At the same time she was on her way to the police station, police said they were acting on a tip from William Tenney of Crystal Bay, a friend of the groom, to pick up Marvin because he had made off with Miss Shevlin.

Miners, Indians Welcome Queen To Schefferville

SCHEFFERVILLE, Que. (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip arrived in this northern Quebec town to visit an iron ore mine Saturday and received a welcome from the town's population of 1,600 and as many more nomadic Naskapi Indians.

The Indian fishermen and trappers, in bright blue and red jackets and fur boots were unsmiling and stoic. Miners in rough clothes cheered.

The royal couple arrived by plane after stopping for a visit at the U.S. Air Force base at Stephenville, Nfld., where a few things went wrong.

First, three little girls who were to present a bouquet had no flowers. The plane that was to bring the welcoming bouquet from Sydney, N.S., was grounded by bad weather.

Second, the new convertible that was to carry them on a tour refused to start. The Queen and her husband had to transfer to a closed limousine.

Usually bringing sunny weather with her, the Queen has traveled 3,000 miles since arriving at St. John's, Nfld., Thursday for a 45-day tour of Canada.

Traveling by plane and air-conditioned automobiles, she has visited dirt-road logging camps, and the huge paper mill at Corner Brook, Nfld., where moose tracks were visible in the dirt of the airstrip.

The Queen has said very little in her public appearances beyond a few words of polite greeting with local officials. Her 38-year-old husband has tried hard to be more friendly. Often he has held up the line to chat with those whose hands he shook.

Long Arranges To Wage Fight For Freedom

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana Gov. Earl K. Long, convinced he belongs back in his office in the state capitol instead of in a mental hospital, made arrangements Saturday to wage a legal battle for his freedom.

Attorney Theo Cangelosi, an old friend of the governor's and his legal advisor for many years, said he had agreed to retain legal counsel for Long.

Cangelosi, who made the statement after a meeting with Long at Southeast Louisiana State (mental) Hospital, would not elaborate except to say the names of Long's attorneys would be announced Monday or Tuesday.

State Hospital Director Jesse Bankston sat in on the conference.

Reports circulating in the State Capitol say Long will try for freedom by applying for a writ of habeas corpus.

A bulletin issued during midmorning said Long "spent a restful night and was getting along well."

Meanwhile, the state's political scene smouldered over the question of Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar taking office as acting governor.

Frazar said Friday he would not shirk his duties as acting governor if an emergency situation developed. But he was cautious to take the governor's reins, even after advice from Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion who said Frazar is now acting governor.

Secretary of State Wade O. Martin, a bitter political enemy of Long's, said he would challenge the 54-year old Frazar in court if he attempted to act as governor. Martin said he would continue to recognize Long as governor.

BOYS STATE CONVENES TODAY IN SPRINGFIELD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The 24th annual Premier Boys State convenes Sunday on the Illinois State Fairgrounds for a week-long session, with 1,200 youths registered from throughout the state.

The Illinois Department of the American Legion sponsors the annual event as a training course in the practical aspects of government.

The boys, ranging in age from 16 to 17, will be welcomed by Mayor Lester E. Collins of Springfield and Al Keller, state commander of the legion. Ronald Harrington of Canton, elected Boys State governor last year, will preside over the 1959 session.

Young Republicans To Offer Platform To National Council

DENVER (AP) — Continued foreign aid, labor union reforms, reduced farm subsidies and withdrawal of government from business were recommended Saturday by the platform committee at the Young Republicans' national convention.

The federation recommendations will be presented to the national GOP convention next year.

Howard Ludington of New York, the Platform Committee chairman, said it contains no reference to so-called "right to work" legislation. The Young Republicans backed a "right to work" legislation. The Young Republicans backed a "right to work" plank at their convention two years ago.

A summary of the major planks in the committee's platform includes:

Agriculture-reduction of government subsidies and controls, and gearing farm economy to a free market.

Business — "Continued orderly withdrawal" of the government from "areas of our nation's productive economy which are more naturally and properly the province of private enterprise."

Foreign policy—Continued economic and military aid to allies; support of the United Nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization; opposition to admission of Communist China and East German to the UN.

Labor—Prohibition of political financial contributions by unions and investigation of possible application of anti-trust laws "to the big, industry-wide union organizations."

National defense—Support of the Eisenhower administration program "rather than the gargantuan program of indiscriminate spending as proposed by the current Democratic leadership."

DENVER, (AP) — Ned Cushing, 35, a bander of Downs, Kan., was elected chairman of the National Federation of Young Republicans Saturday.

An unofficial tabulation showed he had 382 votes to 213 for Sam Young of Chicago.

Before the official vote could be announced the Illinois delegation moved that Cushing's election be declared unanimous.

The name of Fred Dixon of Pueblo, Colo., mentioned as a possible candidate early in the convention here, was not presented.

Cushing, married and the father of two children, succeeds John Asbrook of Washington, D. C.

GATOR GOES

ST. LOUIS (AP — An alligator lost a home by biting the hand that fed it.

Someone sent the baby alligator to 16-year-old Victor A. Cohn of suburban University City. He wanted to keep it. His parents said no. Victor took it to work with him at the car-wash where he is employed.

Victor put the gator in a water-filled hole, but when he went to feed the animal he was bitten twice on his hand. Anti-tetanus shots followed, and Victor's attitude changed.

Unless an alligator lover shows up, the pet will be given to the Animal Protective Society.

Big Four Talks Recess In Stalemate, Silence

TENSE EXPRESSIONS — With tense expressions on their faces the three Western representatives leave the villa of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko after the Big-Four diplomats agreed to adjourn their talks until later on in the month. Struggle For Berlin Lies Ahead

GENEVA (AP) — The Big Four Saturday broke off talks on the Berlin crisis in stalemate and silence with prospects for an East-West summit meeting still uncertain as ever.

Both the Soviets and the Westerners seem agreed after six weeks of painstaking negotiation that the foreign ministers have clarified, rather than narrowed, their main differences over Berlin.

But the two sides also seemed certain that their struggle for Berlin—and through Berlin all Germany—still lies ahead.

"It's going to be a long, hot summer—and I'm not talking about the weather," one Western minister said privately.

U.S., British and French foreign ministers took leave of the Soviet Union's Andrei Gromyko in a five-minute ceremony Saturday morning which was marked by an absence of speeches.

They left open the door of their Palace of Nations conference room for a resumption of talks on Berlin, Germany and European problems July 13.

After lunching with Gromyko and talking privately with his Western colleagues, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter took off for Washington in an Air Force plane. He will report at once to President Eisenhower.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, with senior members of his delegation, followed shortly afterward in a chartered plane for London. Gromyko and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville leave for home Sunday.

In assessing the six-week talks for President Eisenhower, Herter was expected to make these points:

1. Soviet Premier Nikita Khruschev looks as though he is trying to bulldoze his way to a summit meeting. He does not seem ready to pay any sort of price for a summit—for instance in the form of a prior Berlin face-saving deal.

2. Khrushchev's tough stance probably stems from a mistaken Soviet belief that the Allies are in a state of disarray and confusion. There are differences among the Western powers but the hard-

Herter Leaves Geneva With Air Of Man Relieved, Disappointed

GENEVA (AP) — Christian A. Herter turned away from his first big East-West conference Saturday with the air of a man at once relieved and disappointed.

It was a rough initiation into the ways of cold war diplomacy for the new secretary of state.

He came here just six weeks ago hoping that in the final showdown the Soviet Union's Andrei Gromyko would agree to end the Soviet threat to Berlin. Now he sees no way out of the impasse.

The next three weeks could bring a change in the Soviet positions. But Herter and his Western colleagues are up against one hard fact which they did not know when they came here six weeks ago. Their main bargaining weapon, the prospect of a summit conference, was not as powerful as they thought it would be.

One reason may be that public disagreement among the Western powers blunted the weapon's effectiveness.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev knew as well as anyone that while President Eisenhower wants a summit meeting only if there is real prospect of agreement, Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain thinks a meeting is inevitable.

Khrushchev apparently believes that if he sticks to a tough policy of threats and pressure over Berlin, and perhaps other East-West issues, he will get to the summit on his own terms.

There is no reason to think now that Khrushchev will abandon this line before the scheduled resumption of the foreign ministers discussions July 13.

Nor is the summit issue the only one on which Khrushchev presumably counts to make trouble for the West. There are sharp differences between France on one hand and the United States and Britain on the other over Atlantic alliance policy. There is political turmoil in West Germany over Konrad Adenauer's decision to stay on as chancellor.

Such matters and their impact on the whole range of Soviet-Western problems will require Herter's urgent attention the next few weeks as he prepares for the next round of negotiations.

Herter was sworn in to succeed the late John Foster Dulles as secretary of state just two months ago. Although he had been undersecretary two years he had gained experience chiefly in matters not related to the Soviet Union. Dulles himself had handled Soviet issues and the preparations for the Big-

Mother Rams Car Of Youth, Rescues 7-Year-Old Daughter

ATLANTA (AP) — "I was praying that I could stop him and I did."

That's what an attractive suburban Hapeville mother told police Friday after she deliberately crashed her small sedan into another car and rescued her 7-year-old daughter from a would-be abductor.

Mrs. R. E. Carroll told detectives she could see her daughter, Sally, fighting to get out the window.

"I could see my baby and that's all I could see," she said. "He started off fast and I rammed him as hard as I could."

Detectives identified the youth from papers found in his wallet as Raymond A. McMahon, 17, of Chicago. They said he came to live with his grandmother for two months.

The detectives said he fled on foot after the collision. Bloodhounds were put on his trail but he was not found. The Georgia State Patrol and authorities in neighboring states were alerted in the belief he might be heading for Chicago.

Detectives gave this account:

Sally and her sister, Susie, 9, were visiting a friend when a car pulled up and a youth asked the girls:

"How about pushing this button and helping me start the car?"

Sally walked over and the youth grabbed her. He yanked her screaming into the car and sped away. Susie ran shouting for her mother.

Mrs. Carroll obtained a description of the car, told the neighbor to call police, jumped into her own small sedan and went in search of her daughter.

She said she spotted the car parked about a mile away and "I could see the girl fighting to get

Eight Drown As Storm Lashes St. Lawrence Gulf

NEWCASTLE, New Brunswick (AP) — Eight fishermen were drowned and at least 15 others are missing Saturday as the result of a storm that lashed Northumberland Strait between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

Fishermen said the storm was the worst in 30 years.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Moncton said at least 16 fishing boats were missing in addition to five that were washed ashore in the Miramichi Bay area. One of the boats washed ashore carried two bodies. Altogether eight bodies were recovered.

The RCMP said most of the missing boats were small salmon fishing craft which usually carry two or three men each.

Prince Edward Island fishermen said waves 50 to 60 feet high were whipped up by a wind blowing 65 m.p.h. Friday night and early Saturday.

33 Germans Die In Bus-Train Crash, 20 Hurt

LAUFFEN, Germany (AP)—Thirty-three Germans, most of them refugees from behind the Iron Curtain, died Saturday night in a train-bus collision near this south German town.

Police said about 20 others were injured, several critically.

The accident, one of the worst in Germany since World War II, occurred when the crowded bus drove over a guarded level crossing, police said. The Stuttgart-Wuerzburg express train hit the side of the bus and dragged the vehicle about 300 yards.

Many people were hurled from the bus by the impact. Others were trapped and had to be freed with torches cutting through the twisted heap of metal.

Police arrested the gateman after a preliminary investigation established that the gate was only half lowered.

Most of the passengers were German refugees who had attended funeral services for a friend at the village of Meimsheim.

German and American rescue teams worked until after sunset while helicopters flew over the scene of the disaster. The U. S. 4th Armored Division stationed at nearby Goeppingen sent 12 ambulances.

Last Civil War Veteran, Williams, Critically Ill

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter Williams 116, the nation's last Civil War veteran, was in a semi-coma Saturday after suffering a relapse of pneumonia.

The frail, silver-haired Confederate, who has been bedfast for several years, was stricken June 6 at the home of his daughter, Willie Mae Bowles, with whom he has lived.

He spent several days in an oxygen tent then and appeared to be recovering until a relapse Thursday. His doctor again placed him in an oxygen tent.

Williams was born Nov. 14, 1842, in Itawamba County, Miss. He joined the Confederate Army when he was 22 and served as a forage master assigned to finding food for Southern troops.

Just 50 Years Ago Mrs. Dodd Got Idea For Father's Day

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — It was just 50 years ago this spring that a young Spokane woman, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, got the idea for Father's Day — an idea that came during a Mother's Day sermon.

It was a modest idea at first, but Mrs. Dodd has now seen the observance grow "beyond anything I ever dreamed."

Still she shies away from publicity and, although an attractive, gray-haired woman, won't even have her picture taken.

"Father's Day is to glorify fatherhood and not to glorify me," she told a reporter this week.

Mrs. Dodd has never made any attempt to cash in on her plan for Father's Day and has refused hundreds of offers to endorse products in connection with the observance.

About the sermon that prompted the Father's Day movement? "It was full of adulation for motherhood. The preacher was very eloquent though he didn't even mention the word 'father'. I began thinking of my mother who passed away in 1898 while I was yet a child. My thoughts naturally turned to my father who was left with the responsibility of rearing six children. . .

"I thought it would be nice to have a day honoring him and others like him."

Mrs. Dodd took her plan to the preacher. A resolution was drawn up and a year later—on June 19, 1910 — the first known Father's day was observed in Spokane.

The first observance of truly national proportions was in 1922 on the third Sunday of June. It has continued on that day since.

Today Mrs. Dodd lives alone—her husband died in 1954. A son lives in Washington, D.C., happy to know she is responsible for making fathers a little bit happier. On this day at least.

With The Girl Scouts

One more week of camping is left and the weatherman is still our friend! This coming week will wind up activities at Camp Shagbark on Lake Jacksonville and it will be the largest week held this summer. There will be nine units of campers, 16 girls and two leaders to a unit; seven of the units will be Brownies and two Intermediates—the latter two units spending two nights in tents at the site.

The third week of camping just completed was a very happy one for all concerned with six units participating. Many nature hikes were held and the girls hunted avidly for snakes without much success for which the leaders were duly grateful.

Mrs. Alexander Jones, camp director, popularly known as Jonesy, kept everyone's spirits high with her sense of humor and good camping leadership.

Helpers During Week

Helping this past week were Mrs. Tom Brackett, Mrs. Danny Likes, Mrs. William Nunes, Mrs. Robert Reeve, Mrs. Darwin Ronat, Mrs. Fred Splain, Mrs. Ralph Mudd, Mrs. Delores Rolf, Mrs. Lawrence Clemons, Mrs. Herbert Nelson, Mrs. Betty Alexander, Mrs. Glenn Brockhouse.

Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, Mrs. George Losch, Mrs. Alma Skipworth, Mrs. Ruth Seegar, Mrs. Merton L. Pond, Mrs. Norris Whorton, Mrs. Essie Garner, Mrs. John Justice, Mrs. Dorothy Brune, Mrs. Marjorie Thompson, Mrs. George A. Hibbs, Miss Patsy Mudgett and Miss Lynda and Suzanne Hartman. Mrs. John Linebaugh and Mrs. Robert Sandberg were shoppers.

Ninety-six girls were enrolled. Each day one unit was responsible for news for the camp newspaper and at the end of the week six pages of interesting tidbits were compiled, covered with art-work covers and taken home as camp souvenirs.

Among leaders nicknamed this week were: Mrs. Pond, Ducky; Mrs. Brockhouse Rocky; Mrs. Sullivan, Tweetie; Mrs. Losch, Redbird; Mrs. Hibbs, Bunny; Mrs. Garner, Sunshine; Mrs. Nelson Giggles; Mrs. Likes, Red; Mrs. Brockett, Boss.

The Nutty Shagbarkers (Unit 5 this past week) had quite a time looking for an elephant at camp. It was finally spotted in a tree—a purple one with polka dots and tan shoes with pink shoelaces. Many snakes were spotted but none caught. The Brownies saw a lot of rabbits but the older girls didn't see any.

Two tragedies marred the happy week. Brenda Williams cut her foot Wednesday night and had to be taken to the hospital. She returned to camp later.

Loses Home

The second tragedy was more serious—Connie Nelson of Chandlerville, returned home Thursday from camp to find her home and all its contents had been completely destroyed by fire during the day. There are two girls in the family and dress size 6, 8 or 10 will fit them. If anyone has any clothing which might be used by these children, please bring it to the Scout office. Also the family will need anything else used in housekeeping such as utensils for cooking, etc., since they lost everything.

To Leave For Roundup

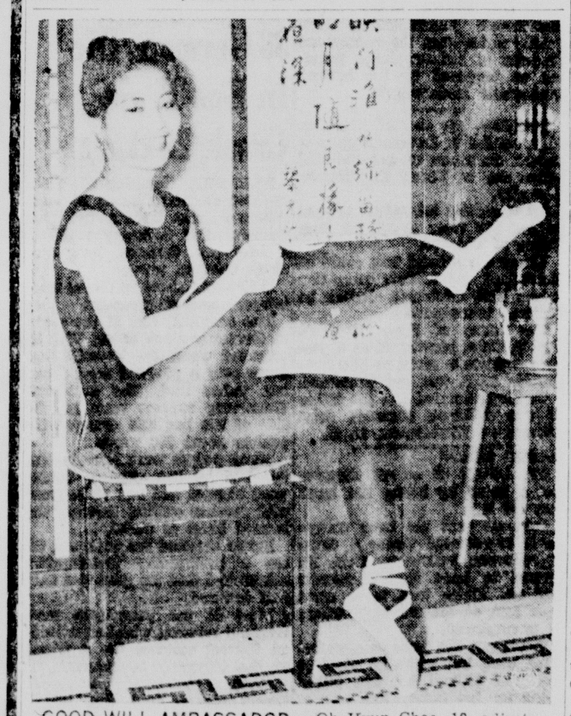

A week from today the Roundup girls will leave Jacksonville for Colorado Springs, Colo. for a camping session with 7,000 other Girl Scouts of the nation.

Gail Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Ward, 1030 West State street, a member of Senior Troop No. 1, will also attend the Roundup as the first alternate. Virginia Gronseth and Carol Abbott are the two delegates. These girls have been making extensive preparations for their trip and took part in a series of practice camping sessions with girls from other Councils who will also be attending Roundup.

The three girls will go to St. Louis next Sunday where they will join their Roundup patrols: Virginia and Carol will join the Granite City group and Gail will go with the East St. Louis Council. They will travel aboard a Girl Scout train to Colorado, the Roundup will be held on ranch land near Colorado Springs. The girls are taking swap items donated by local corporations to trade with other girls from all parts of the country. Their camping equipment and personal effects have already been shipped west; the girls will entrain with only overnight cases and their swap items.

A new official Girl Scout and Brownie product is available to girls in this area—canvas oxfords made on a special last for growing feet, with a built in arch support, long wearing sunfast uppers and rugged crepe-type outsole. They are in white or green for the Girl Scouts and white or brown for the Brownies, and may be purchased at Myers Brothers Department store in Springfield. These are specially nice for summer wear. These shoes will be shown in the new issue of Girl Scout and Brownie equipment directory.

Mrs. Warren K. Reynolds

Donna Lamkular Of Ashland Bride Of Warren Reynolds; To Live Near Barry

Miss Donna Jean Lamkular and Warren K. Reynolds were united in Holy Matrimony at three o'clock the afternoon of Sunday, June fourteen, at Literberry Christian church. This was the first nuptial ceremony performed in the newly constructed church building. The vows were exchanged before a background of fern, palms and candelabra.

The Reverend Arnold H. Whittler performed the double ring ceremony. Mr. Lamkular gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Lamkular of Ashland and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. L. A. Flick of Barry and the late Leslie Reynolds.

Miss Ruth Rexroat, accompanied at the organ by Robert Wegehoft, sang, "O Promise Me," "At Dawning" and "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Betty Sue Myers registered guests at the church.

A cousin of the bride, Miss Rose Sheeley of Jacksonville, served as maid of honor and Miss Carolyn Zinser, Prophetstown and a college roommate of the bride, was bridesmaid.

The wide winged V neckline was edged with delicate French lace. Lace bands were appliqued to the bouffant skirt giving a redingote effect. The gown was worn over a tiered hoop.

The bride carried Esther Reed daisies arranged in a cascade.

The attendants wore identical gowns of pastel blue satin with scoop cut necklines at the snug bodices. Their accessories were white and each carried a nosegay of blue and white Esther Reed daisies.

Mrs. Lamkular wore for her daughters wedding a rose colored lace dress. Her accessories were white and her corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Flick wore blue lace with white accessories and white carnations.

Receive At Church

A reception was held in the church basement immediately following the ceremony. Pink and white were used in decorating.

A four tiered cake adorned the serving table trimmed in pink on white. Cake was served with rose-tinted fruit punch, blue and white mints and salted nutmeats. Blue and white daisies centered the table covered with a hand crocheted cloth made by the mother of the bride.

Mrs. Howard Houston of Watseka, cousin of the bride and Merrilee McQueery, Carrollton, cousin of the bridegroom, cut and served cake. Mrs. James Gillett, Aledo, former roommate of the bride, and Mrs. T. C. Luck, Hannibal, Mo., sister of the bridegroom, served punch.

In charge of gifts for the couple, received at the reception, were Mrs. Norman Schaller, Lawton, Oklahoma, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Edward Butzow, Sycamore, sister of the bride.

Cass Youth Committee Gives Summaries Of Three County Studies

VIRGINIA — Chairman of the health, vocational counselling and religion divisions of the Cass County White House Conference on Youth committee gave statistical reports and work summaries at a meeting in Virginia, at the Farm Bureau building last Tuesday evening.

The Health Sub-committee, under the direction of Mrs. John Rolf as chairman, examined health facts in Cass county communities, schools and homes. The report of the committee lists such figures as 317 live births and 14 premature births in a year for county residents. Heart disease ranks overwhelmingly high as the first cause of death, with cancer as the second cause.

Poisoning Cases

Mrs. Rolf sighted information sent to the committee from the state concerning the many cases of accidental poisoning of children in downstate Illinois. These figures were for the area of Illinois south of Peoria and the time period from Jan. 1 to April 30, 1959: 201 cases of accidental poisoning of two-year old children were reported; 162 cases of one-year olds and 81 cases of three-year olds; 525 cases were reported for the four month period in ages 1 to 12; 281 of these were from tablet form medicines, 52 from household preparations, 40 from liquid medicines, and 39 from external type medicines.

Vocational Guidance

The report of the vocational guidance sub-committee, Donald Binns, chairman, was mainly a negative one. Organizations such as Boy Scouts, 4-H and church youth groups, along with schools do a limited amount of vocational guidance work. The county does not have a qualified counselor. Several teachers are qualified to do such work, but are employed in classroom positions. The committee lists the Diversified Occupations Training Course at the Beardstown high school as a gain in that area.

Religious Affiliations

Mrs. John Clark, Arenzville, gave the report of the religion sub-committee in the absence of Rev. William Jones, Ashland, chairman. The committee reported an increase in church membership from 59% of the county population in 1950 to 65% at present. The group felt this was a definite gain considering the decline in county population. 80% of the churches have full time pastors. The committee felt there was a need for the pastors across the county and their church leaders to meet together to survey the county church needs.

Final Recommendations

Recommendations for Cass county will be drawn into final form by the six sub-committee chairmen and Mrs. Floyd M. Leonhard, chairman-at-large, and Mrs. James Merwin, co-chairman, this week. These recommendations will be compiled with those of other counties into a report by the state committee, and will be sent to Washington as the official Illinois report.

'Prospectors' Discover Treasures At Library

Approximately 200 prospectors have found treasures in the young people's room of the Jacksonville Public Library. These prospectors are participants in the 12th annual summer reading program instigated by the children's department in the Public library.

The miners are expected to read at least 10 books during the summer months and report on their treasures to the "foreman," Miss Esther Connor.

The prospector fills his bag with "gold" dots representing the number and types of books read. Not only do these miners fill their bags with treasure, but they may stake a claim in any part of the world for each non-fiction book that they read. Thus the readers may travel around the world for 10 books in their own good time.

Any child who has completed the first grade may participate in the summer reading program. He must read books according to his grade level and may check out six books at one time.

At the present time, Cathy Whitton, daughter of Laverne Whitton, 7 Winthrop Terrace, a pupil at Lincoln Grade school, has discovered the most treasure: she has read a total of 18 books in approximately two weeks. Gary Norton, Washington Grade school; Sandra Kay Werner, Salem Lutheran Grade school; and John Charles Ryan, Our Saviour's Grade school are among those who have read more than the required 10 books.

Many pupils from Lafayette, Jefferson, South Jacksonville, and North Jacksonville grade schools are also participating in the program.

Streamers of satin fell from the back at the neckline to the hem. She carried a white Bible with tiny blue flowers. Her headpiece was accented with a crown of pearls with a flowing nylon net shoulder length veil.

Mrs. Denton Rusten played traditional wedding music and accompanied Miss Carolyn Evans who sang, "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer."

The bride was attended by Mrs. Bob Mathews. Mrs. Mathews' gown was of pastel pink tissue cotton with rounded neckline, lace inserts and pleated skirt. Her headpiece was a pink tiara with a small veil. Her nosegay bouquet was of pink and white daisies with streamers of ribbon.

The groom was attended by Denton Rusten, friend of the couple. Ushers and candlelighters were Bob Mathews, friend of the groom, and Joe Dawdy, brother of the bride, both of Roodhouse.

The groom's mother wore a blue and white flowered jersey dress with white accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

The bride's aunt, Mrs. Blakey, wore pale pink open-weave orlon with white accessories and a white carnation corsage.

After the wedding trip, the couple will leave for Mexico, Mo., where the groom is engaged in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Piper are graduates of Roodhouse Community High school. Mrs. Piper has been employed in the offices at the Roodhouse Envelope Co.

500 'Girl Staters' Enjoy Busy Week Of Political Activity

GIRLS FROM ALL PARTS OF STATE LEARN PRINCIPLES OF GOVERNMENT

Girls from the far corners of Illinois have an opportunity to learn more about the operation of good government in sessions similar to this one in Annie Merner Chapel on the MacMurray College campus. Select speakers and staff members set a whirlwind pace for the 500 high school juniors, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. Girls State, now in its 19th year, was patterned after Boys State, a product of the American Legion for young men.

The week-long activities reached a climax with the selection of governor last night. The general assembly will be in session today. A trip to Springfield to visit the Illinois hub of government, Lincoln's Tomb and a side-trip to new Salem State Park will wind-up the week of activities.

Gubernatorial Race, Inauguration Spark Girls State Session

Gubernatorial races for Illini Girls State officials ended Saturday afternoon with Darlene Senatre as the newly elected governor for 1959.

Leonard W. Esper, public relations director for Charles F. Carpentier, Secretary of State, administered the oath of office to Darlene and other campaign winners during the inauguration ceremonies in Annie Merner Chapel last night.

Darlene is the 17 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Senatre, 225 Hosmer Street, Loves Park, Illinois. She will be a senior next Fall at Harlem high school.

The election is quite an honor for Darlene who has never participated in any campaign for any class office throughout her school career. When asked how she felt about being elected 1959 Illini Girls State Governor, she replied, "Extremely proud and happy."

Delegates to Girls State will tour the state capitol in Springfield on Monday with Speaker Paul Powell in charge of the program, along with Mrs. T. K. Rinaker, assistant dean. Mrs. Rinaker will conduct a candle light service for the girls this evening at 8 p.m. in Annie Merner Chapel.

Political Parties

Each delegate to Girls State was assigned a political party, either the federalist or the nationalist, at the time of registration last Tuesday afternoon. Each party adopted a platform, cheers, campaign slogan and motto at the State Party Convention and recorded the vote according to the appeal made to the citizens.

A regular post office is set up during Girls State week operating according to government regulations.

Girls will attend the church of their choice today.

JACKSONVILLE GIRLS STATER

MISS PAT CROWCROFT

"The schedule is a bit crowded in Jacksonville. Very active in high school and church activities, I don't get as much rest as I usually do, but it is worth it all the way. This is a better fellowship than any camp I ever attended; we do everything together—study, sing, eat. . . ."

And on continued Pat Crowcroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dale Crowcroft, of 663 South Diamond in her enthusiasm for Illini Girls State which she is attending this week at MacMurray College.

"This is the best way to learn—by doing, with the guidance of capable adults who are really interested in you, and who treat you as an adult," she declared.

Pat was selected to attend Girls State from the Jacksonville High School junior class by the Auxiliary of American Legion Post 279 in Jacksonville. Very active in high school and church activities, Pat is local president and district treasurer of the Methodist Youth Fellowship, past president of the Illinois State Student Librarian Association, a member of the Grace Methodist Church choir, the honor society, the Rainbow Girls and Tri-Hi-Y. She was recently elected next year's treasurer of the Jacksonville High School senior class. After graduation Pat plans to go to college and major in education.

"I'm aware of the seriousness of this week," concluded the local girl, "and I'm glad to have the privilege to learn city, county and state government. I think that it is a great honor to be able to work with this group of purposeful girls to build a better country."

They rated a standing ovation by the packed banquet hall and drew a happy tear from several.

SLOW LEARNERS

Association Aids Retarded Children

NEW HORIZONS are rapidly opening up for the tens of thousands of retarded children in the United States, who, until recent years, were in a great sense neglected or ignored owing to public apathy about their plight.

Today, in many communities, these legions of lost souls are being taught to care for their personal needs and even to become self-sufficient, thanks to new educational techniques. In the Delaware River area around Philadelphia, which alone contains over 70,000 mentally retarded children, these young unfortunates, or "slow learners," are being helped by the Philadelphia Association for Retarded Children, a voluntary, non-profit organization supported by funds collected from the community. Serving all economic, religious and racial groups, this organization operates a training school and workshop as well as supervising recreation programs for the children. Through the efforts of the P.A.R.C., more than 10 per cent of the children it handles gain entrance to the public schools that originally denied them entrance. The work of the P.A.R.C. is heavily concentrated in the 5 through 8-year-old group since it is important to get the children into school as early as possible. Martin F. Papish, president of the association, reports that nine of ten mentally retarded children can be trained to be self-sufficient.

"One of our biggest problems at present," Papish says, "is that there are not enough trained teachers in this field."

A child's physical defects often have much to do with the ability to learn. Special therapy minimizes disability, allows learning at normal rates.

CO-ORDINATION IS OFTEN highly difficult for a mentally retarded child. This youngster is making a valiant effort to pick up corks.

THIS LIGHT BOARD is used to develop a sense of relationship between various objects. Boy is learning that light will go on when he pushes the switch.

A SIMPLE TASK for a normal child is often difficult for a retarded one. This 6-year-old girl is trying to put a button through a buttonhole.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ingemar Johansson's training at Grossinger's reached the stage of ridicule.

But the Swede's record of having knocked out 13 of 21 opponents is considerable in the way of evidence that he can punch a little with the right hand he failed to unlimber in round after round against mediocre sparring mates at Smorgasbord-in-the-Catskills.

It is for this reason that Johansson must be given the chance that puts him in the Yankee Stadium ring for a scheduled 15-round world heavyweight championship match with Floyd Patterson on June 25.

From what we have seen of Independent Ingemar, he must knock out Patterson quickly or be slowly and methodically chopped up and stopped, say in about nine rounds.

Frankly, Johansson, who has appeared to be more of a picnicker than a prize fighter, has looked so bad that practically all boxing men actually wonder whether he will turn out to be a real test for Patterson.

His conditioning program for what should be the most important battle of his life has largely consisted of flying back and forth between his luxurious quarters and Broadway for television appearances and whatnot.

He has been assisted in his rigorous preparation by his fiancee and an entourage of relatives and friends who accompanied him from the Old Country on his grand tour de luxe and free load for which he is guaranteed $100,000 with the privilege of 20 per cent.

When he crowded in time for casual workouts, Johansson's pawing left looked as ineffectual as a Geneva conference. The right with which he is supposed to slay dragons was as invisible as Patterson between fights. He hasn't the slightest idea of what infighting is. His hands and feet were slow and he was an easy target. The best the sparring mates could say about him was that he was strong.

• • •

Johansson looks good physically to the naked eye, but then, so does Errol Flynn.

Those who have seen him in European rings say he is just a shade better than Brian London, Patterson's last carefully-selected opponent, and you remember what he was like in Indianapolis last May 1.

While Johansson lumbers about the battlepit in a typically European upright stance, Patterson boasts adroit footwork, developed, no doubt, dodging the likes of Sonny Liston, the one heavyweight the public would like to see him fight.

While Johansson is strictly a one-punch-at-a-time fighter, Patterson has as many combinations as a safe manufacturer.

Johansson's chance of knocking Patterson down is enhanced by Flailing Floyd's square stance, which is what enabled Pete Rademacher, the amateur, and Roy Harris, a slapper, to dip the seat of his tights in resin.

• • •

Patterson habitually holds his gloves as though they were earmuffs or on the sides of his face like a man with a double toothache. From this arrangement he plays peek-a-boo, occasionally emerging from his shell to play pattycake.

His copyrighted style prohibits leverage on punches which accounts for the fact that poor Hurricane Tommy Jackson went 23 rounds, Harris 12 and London 11.

Patterson's ability to absorb punishment remains to be demonstrated. Cus D'Amato has consistently winnowed out potential opponents who might offer a threat.

If Ingemar Johansson is in condition to survive the ordeal of climbing the little steps leading to the ring, he has some sort of a chance—if he has a knockout right, or any right at all.

Herein lies the only chance for any excitement, and there should be considerable at a $100 top.

HARVARD WENT FOR TWO

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—Harvard failed to make a conversion kick last football season mainly because the Crimson didn't try. After each of their 18 touchdowns in 1958, Harvard tried to pass or run for two points instead of getting one via the conventional kick.

Pros To Play Chicago Open For $57,000

CHICAGO (AP) — The richest meet of pro golf's summer campaign, the $57,000 Chicago Open, will lure a field of 150 to Glen-eagles Country Club, Thursday through Sunday.

Defending champion Ken Venturi will seek to duplicate the $9,000 first-place loot he captured in last year's first Gleneagles tourney which replaced the canceled big golf show at Chicago's Tam O'Shanter.

Venturi won in 1958 with a 72-hole total of 272. That stripped 8 strokes from par for the distance over Gleneagles' 6,350-yard layout which has a par of 70 for 18 holes.

The field will include winners of 20 of 24 major tournaments thus far played this year.

200 Entered In Left-Handed Golfers Tourney

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — Two hundred golfers, often noticed on the course first because they swing left-handed and second because of their skill, go for national recognition of their abilities this week in the annual tournament of the National Assn. of Left-handed Golfers.

Representing nearly every state in the nation, they tee off Tuesday in the first of four 18-hole rounds running through Friday.

Besides a national left-handed titlist, a senior flight champion—for players 50 or older—will be determined in the medal play at Soangetaha County Club.

Defending grand Champion Harry Shoemaker is expected to face stiff competition.

Gordie Malstrom, a regular on the University of Illinois golf team, is Galesburg'h best local hope.

Chicago Cards To Introduce Dancing Girls

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cardinals will introduce 45 dancing girls at the four games they will play in Soldier Field this fall.

The girls, to be known as the Cardettes, will perform before the games and during halftime. Their show will feature precision dancing, baton twirling and formations.

Yankees Tromp Cleveland, 10-2

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees parlayed scatter-arm Herb Score's five walks and two throwing errors into seven runs in the first two innings Saturday and romped to a 10-2 victory over Cleveland.

Bill Skowron hammered his 11th and 12th homers and a triple and drove in five run for the Yanks, who won their fifth straight and pulled within 1½ games of the first place Indians.

Duke Maas, now 5-4, survived bases-loaded jams in the first and third innings to record his second complete game. Woody Held hit his 11th homer for both Cleveland runs in the ninth.

Score walked two and threw wild on an attempted pickoff in the first inning when the Yankees scored twice. He walked three, two with the bases loaded, and threw wild after fielding a bunt in the second when the Yanks added five more runs.

George Strickland also contributed a throwing error to make five of the seven runs off Score unearned. Score allowed only two hits—an RBI triple by Skowron in the first, and a bunt single by Bobby Richardson leading off the second.

Skowron hit his 11th homer off reliever Al Cicotte after Mickey Mantle singled in the fifth, and got No. 12 in the seventh with the bases empty against Jim Perry.

Tigers Whip Senators, 7-4

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit scored five runs in the seventh inning Saturday and whipped the Washington Senators 7-4.

Held to one hit for the first five innings by Washington starter Hal Griggs, the Tigers scored two in the sixth to tie it at 2-2 and then ripped the game wide open in the seventh.

Lou Berberet walked and beat Griggs' throw to second on Johnny Groth's bunt. Rocky Bridges tried to sacrifice but beat his bunt out to fill the bases. After Griggs retired two batters without an advance, ex-Senator Eddie Yost singled across two runs and Larry Osborne doubled home two more. The fifth came in on second baseman Reno Bertoia's throwing error on Harvey Kuenn's infield single.

The Senators were held homerless for the first time in eight games. Rookie Bob Allison, with two singles and a two-run double, was the big gun.

Braves Grab First Place In NL With 4-1 Win Over Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Milwaukee's Braves grabbed back the National League first place from San Francisco Saturday with a 4-1 victory behind Giant-killer Lew Burdette's five-hitter.

Milwaukee ended the Giants' top spot reign after only 17 hours. The Braves began pecking away against left-hander Mike McCormick with a run in the second and never were headed.

First baseman Joe Adcock, taped securely to protect pulled rib muscles, returned to the Braves' lineup and belted his fifth homer of the year, a 380-foot solo clout in the fifth inning.

A capacity crowd of 22,905 watched as Burdette notched his 11th victory of the season and his 14th over the Giants in his last 15 tries against them.

The Giants escaped a shutout when Willie Mays doubled home Willie Kirkland who had walked, in the eighth.

The triumph put the Braves' season mark at 37-28 and the Giants a half game behind at 37-29 with the finale of the crucial three game series coming up Sunday.

Ace left-handers Warren Spahn for the Braves and John Antonelli of the Giants drew the pitching assignments.

St. Louis Claims 5-2 Victory Over Pirates

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Wilmer Mizell needed help from Lindy McDaniel to gain his ninth victory Saturday as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-2.

Bill White, boosting his season average to .357 with three hits, and Joe Cunningham each drove in two runs to lead the attack on Bob Friend.

The Cardinals, notching their 10th victory in their last 13 games, staked Mizell to a 5-0 lead going into the seventh inning. The left-hander was shaky but effective in the clutch up to that point as the Pirates stranded nine runners.

In the seventh Dick Schofield's double and singles by Dick Groat and Roman Mejias, plus Dick Stuart's sacrifice fly, produced the two Buc tallies.

McDaniel took over and allowed an infield hit to Bill Virdon, but got Don Hoak to bounce into a double play. McDaniel then set down the last six men in order.

The Cardinals scored twice in the first on a walk, White's single and Cunningham's double. White doubled and scored on Ray Jablonski's single in the third.

In the fifth White again delivered with a two-run single.

Dark Horse Badgers Sweep Collegiate Rowing Meet

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP) — Wisconsin's dark horse Badgers swept to the front with a mile and a quarter to go and whipped Syracuse's favored Orange by two lengths for the Intercollegiate Rowing Assn. championship on wind-swept Onondaga Lake Saturday.

The Big Ten rowers, tallest crew in the 11-shell varsity final, won their second IRA title and their first since the 1951 race at Marietta, Ohio.

The Badgers not only broke Cornell's victory streak at four but ended Eastern domination of this rowing classic ever since it was shifted to Onondaga in 1952.

After collaring pace-setting Syracuse at the mile and three-quarters mark of the 3-miler, the Badgers pulled ahead with every stroke.

Navy, trying desperately to win the big one "for Rusty"—retiring coach Rusty Callow — finished third and almost nipped Syracuse at the wire. California, trying to do the same for retiring Ky Ebright, was fourth.

Washington, returning to IRA competition after a two-year NCAA-enforced ban, took fifth place. The Huskies, however, won the Jim Ten Eyck team trophy with second place finishes in both the freshman and junior varsity races plus their fifth in the climax race.

Wisconsin's time in the face of a 17 m.p.h. headwind was 18:01.7. This was far behind the course record time of 15:08.1 set by Navy's Olympic championship crew in 1952 with the aid of a terrific tailwind.

Burleson, Tidwell Break Records At AAU Meet

By FRANK PITMAN

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Oregon freshman miler Dyrol Burleson and Kansas University hurdler Charlie Tidwell raced to sensational record-breaking victories Saturday in the rain-dampened National AAU Track and Field Championships.

Burleson, unmindful of the mile-high altitude or the soggy cinders, beat his senior teammate Jim Grelle, the NCAA mile champion, in the 1,500-meters race, 120 yards short of a mile. Burleson's time of 3 minutes, 47.5 seconds cracked the AAU mark of 3:47.9 set in 1940 by Wisconsin miler Walter Mehl.

Tidwell, NCAA 100-yard dash champion, blazed to a United States record in the 200-meters low hurdles. His time around one curve of 22.6 seconds broke his 1958 mark of 22.7. Tidwell also erased the AAU mark of 23.3 by Harrison Dillard in 1946.

San Jose State's great sprinter, Ray Norton, sped to victory in the 200 meters to become the only double champion in the two-day meet. He won the 200 meters in 20.8 seconds. Norton copped the 100 meters in 10.5.

Norton took over the crowns held last year by Bobby Morrow, Abilene (Tex.) Christian's great star who failed to qualify in either event. Morrow has been unable to get in top condition since suffering a muscle spasm in his left thigh at Houston June 6.

The Southern California Striders, featuring record - breaking shot putter Parry O'Brien, repeated as team champions.

Al Oerter of the New York Athletic Club set an AAU meet record in the discus of 186 feet, 5 inches Saturday. Fortune Gorden set the old mark of 183-9½ in 1953.

STREATOR MAN TAKES TRAP SHOOT PRELIMINARY

STREATOR, Ill. (AP)—John McGrath of Streator, shooting from 27 yards out, broke 97 of 100 targets Saturday to defeat a field of 277 entries in the preliminary handicap of the 83rd annual Illinois Trap Shooting Tournament.

Four others finished in a tie for second with 96 targets. They were Don Edwards, Utica, Ill.; D. J. Till Jr., St. Charles, Ill.; Leo Kivits, Terre Haute, Ind., and Harvey Montgomery, Kankakee, Ill.

Tony Biagi of Highland Park, Ill., broke 95 of his 50 pair of targets to win the doubles shooting championship.

The meet ends Sunday with the State Handicap shoot in which some 400 participants will compete.

Roberts Holds Cubs To Four Hits; Wins 6-3

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Robin Roberts, one of baseball's great right-handers, lost his bid for a no-hitter with one out in the eighth inning Saturday and then hung on to pitch Philadelphia to a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Roberts, gaining his sixth triumph in 11 decisions, limited the Cubs to four hits and lost his shutout in the eighth inning when the Cubs scored a pair of runs on two hits, and two errors.

With one out in the eighth inning, Lee Walls hit a ground ball to shortstop Joe Koppe who threw widly for a two base error. Roberts' no-hitter went down the drain when Randy Jackson bounced a slow roller to third. Third baseman Gene Freese threw the ball in desperation but his throw bounced away from Ed Bouchee and Walls scored.

Pinch batter Irv Noren then lined a clean single to left, sending home the second unearned run.

Until the eighth, the 32-year-old Roberts—who gained the 212th victory of his 12-year career—had baffled the Cubs on a diet of slow curves and changeups. With one out in the sixth, Jackson drew a walk to become Chicago's first base runner. Tony Taylor also walked in the sixth but Roberts got out of trouble when George Altman bounced out.

The Phillies staked Roberts to a 4-0 lead in the fourth inning and then added a pair of insurance runs in the ninth.

Philadelphia's four runs came on four hits and three walks sending starter Dick Drott to the showers after he forced in a run by walking Joe Koppe with the bases full.

An error, a sacrifice, Joe Koppe's single, another error and a sacrifice fly by Richie Ashburn added two more runs in the ninth.

Jim Marshall picked up a run for Chicago in the ninth when he led off with his sixth homer and after Ernie Banks singled, Roberts bore down to get the next three men and ended the game by fanning Walls.

Floyd Patterson, Johansson Wind Up Training

CHATHAM, N. J. (AP) — Floyd Patterson began tapering off in his preparation for the defense of his world heavyweight boxing title against Ingemar Johansson of Sweden in New York's Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

He ran the usual four miles before breakfast but cut the boxing to three rounds, one with Bill Tate of Chicago and two with Lou Jones of Rockford, Ill.

At Grossinger, N. Y., while using his right hand sparingly, heavyweight challenger Ingemar Johansson of Sweden wound up training Saturday for his title bout with champion Floyd Patterson at Yankee Stadium Thursday night.

Johansson, who says he'll spend the next four days loafing and building up his strength, worked six rounds in the outdoor ring, put in two rounds on the punching bag and said:

"I know I am in very good condition. It isn't necessary for me to win by a knockout. I'm in condition to go 15 rounds."

Was he still confident of winning?

"Certainly," he said. "Every fighter is — or ought to be."

Hard Hitting Line Holds Hill

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A pro-football player for the Chicago Bears ran into a hard hitting line of policemen Saturday.

Harlon Hill, one of the Bears' top pass-catching ends, is free on bond after he was arrested on charges of six different offenses, including drunken driving, after leaving the scene of an accident.

Police traced Hill to his home after obtaining his license number from Mark Paris, 16, driver of the other auto involved.

C. E. Hawkins, one of three policemen who made the arrest at Hill's home, quoted him as saying "You little . . .! You're too little to put those handcuffs on me."

Hill was taken into custody after what the officers described as a hard struggle.

Specific charges against Hill were: drunk driving, running a red light, leaving the scene, resisting arrest, driving without a license and driving after his license was revoked. Police said he lost his license after being arrested in Arkansas recently on a drunk driving charge.

Honeys Gem Takes $58,150 Beverly Handicap

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Editor

CHICAGO (AP)— Honeys Gem, a 4-year-old brown filly, led almost all the way to capture the $58,150 Beverly Handicap for fillies and mares at Washington Park Saturday.

Bornastar, the 4-5 favorite, never was in contention in the one mile feature, but managed to finish fourth.

Honeys Gem, ridden by Johnny Longden, staved off a strong stretch drive by Indian Maid, the only 3-year-old in the field of 13.

Honeys Gem, owned by the Conejo Ranch of Thousand Oaks, Calif., had failed to place only once in eight previous starts and finished second to vaunted Bug Brush in the Sequoia Handicap June 2 at Hollywood Park.

Milly K. edged out Bornastar for third money.

Honeys Gem returned $15.40, $6.60 and $5.00. Indian Maid paid $6.60 and $4.80. Milly K.'s show price was $12.40.

Honeys Gem's time over a fast track for the mile was 1:34. This broke the stakes record of 1:34 2-5 set by Bewitch.

The attendance for the closing program on the Balmoral-at-Washington Park meeting was 20,580.

A's Snap Losing Streak With 6-2 Win Over Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP)— Bud Daley, with help from reliever Bob Grim, outshone Hoyt Wilhelm in a battle of knuckleballs Saturday night and the Kansas City Athletics snapped a seven-game losing streak with a 6-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Daley, who got credit for his sixth triumph in 11 decisions, and Grim were supported by a 17-hit attack including two home runs by Bob Cerv and one by Kent Hadley.

Wilhelm, suffering his second straight defeat after nine consecutive victories, had allowed only one other home run all year. Before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth, he gave up 13 hits, six of them for extra bases.

Grim came on in the eighth after Daley, touched for only two singles until then, ran into trouble. The starting left-hander gave up four more singles and a run in this frame.

With one run in, two on and two out, Grim gave up a run-registering single to Bob Nieman, then fanned Gus Triandos to end the threat with the A's still ahead 4-2.

Champaign-Urbana Links Set For State Tournament

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The twin cities of Champaign-Urbana become the amateur golf capital of Illinois next week as both the men's and women's state tournaments unfold.

The men's tournament, which drew a record entry of 203 contestants, will be played over the sprawling University of Illinois Savoy Course starting Monday morning. Eighteen-hole qualifying rounds on Monday and Tuesday will cut the big field to 64 players who will then settle down to match play for the remainder of the week.

A 36-hole finals will determine the champion next Saturday.

A new men's champion will be named since Jim Frisina of Taylorville, the only five-time winner of the event, will not be back to defend his title.

Among the early favorites to succeed Frisina are six of last year's quarter-finalists: Martin Stanovich and Lou Rosanova of Tam O'Shanter, Chicago; Dante Vicini, Ottawa; Remo Croveti, Waukegan; Hal Miller, Chicago, and runner-up Cris Sarro of Champaign.

Bob Dredge of Galesburg, 1957 titlist; Gene Readette of Rockford, winner in 1955, and last year's medalist, hard-hitting Bob Scherer of Decatur, are given good chances for the title.

The women will battle it out over the Urbana Country Club Course, also starting Monday. After an 18-hole qualifying round Monday all players will be assigned to flights. The finals are scheduled for Friday over 36 holes.

Barbara Ann Slobe of the Glen Flora County Club of Waukegan, will open defense of the title she won last year at Decatur, when she tees off in a threesome with Doris Phillips of Belleville and Mrs. Clyde Webb of Murphysboro.

Lois Drafke of La Grange, who won titles in 1953 and 1955, is one of the pre-meet favorites. Miss Drafke, who won her first state crown when she was only 15, won the Illiniwek State Medal Play Tournament last year.

Another youngster to watch is Lana Kaye Roberts, 14-year-old daughter of the Sullivan Country Club professional. Miss Roberts, who has won 29 tournaments in her young career, was the youngest player to compete in the now-defunct Tam at Chicago. She played in her first when she was 11.

Boston Sweeps Double Header From Chicago

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—Boston swept a day-night double header from Chicago Saturday, 8-2 and 9-0, dumping the reeling White Sox from second to fifth place in the American League standings.

The losses were the fourth and fifth straight for the White Sox who led the league only five days ago. They now trail fourth place New York by one percentage port —.525 and .524.

Boston used a six-run burst in the third inning and the sharp, three-hit pitching of Jerry Casale for the nightcap victory.

A four-run first inning off Early Wynn put the Red Sox off and running to their afternoon decision.

Frank Malzone drove in five runs for the Red Sox, he got three in the first game, two of them on a homer, and two more in the second as Boston jumped from the cellar to sixth place.

Casale, a rookie right-hander, now 6-4, won his fifth straight.

Pete Runnels singled to start things against loser Dick Donovan in the third inning of the nightcap.

That was followed by two bases on balls. Malzone singled in two runs. Singles by Dick Gernert and Marty Keough each produced a run. Another scored on an error by Nellie Fox, and Don Buddin singled in the last one of the inning.

Bruce Crampton, Finsterwald Lead Canadian Open

MONTREAL (AP)—Bruce Crampton, a straight-shooting son of a Sydney, Australia, policeman, and Dow Finsterwald, the United States PGA champion, tied for the lead Saturday after the third round of the Canadian Open Golf Championship.

Finishing in a steady rain at the Islesmere Course, Crampton, leader at the halfway point, posted a 70 for his 205 total and Finsterwald shot a 69 to tie him for the lead.

It still was anybody's tournament going into Sunday's final round as the weather failed to make the 6,695-yard, par 36-36—72 Islesmere course tough for the top professionals of four countries.

Although their 54-hole totals of 205 were 11 under Islesmere's par, Crampton and Finsterwald had only a one-stroke lead over Art Wall of Pocono Manor, Pa., winner of three tournaments and nearly $35,000 on the pro circuit this year, and Doug Ford, former Masters and PGA winner. Wall had a third round 70 and Ford a 69.

A mid-afternoon thunderstorm halted play for nearly half an hour and rain fell almost continually thereafter.

Two strokes behind the leader at 207 came Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., two under par with a 70. Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., had a par 72 for 208 and Tommy Bolt had a 70 for 209.

GALIMORE SIGNS WITH CHICAGO BEARS

CHICAGO (AP) — Willie Galimore, the Chicago Bears' speedy halfback, has signed his contract for the 1959 season.

Owner-Coach George Halas predicted Galimore's duties on offense would be widened this season.

Galimore has averaged 4.5 yards per carry in his two National Football League seasons.

During those two seasons he has gained 1,157 yards and scored 13 touchdowns on 257 running plays. Also, he has caught 23 passes for 352 yards and 5 touchdowns.

Halas said he expects the 24-year-old Florida A&M graduate to improve on catching passes this year.

LONDON (AP)—India's Ramanathan Krishnan completed his two-day sweep of Wimbledon favorites Saturday by winning the men's singles title in the warm-up London Club Tournament with a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Neale Fraser of Australia.

Krishnan, overlooked in the Wimbledon seedings, had spilled U.S. Davis Cup star Alex Olmedo of Peru in straight sets in Friday's semifinals. Olmedo is seeded No. 1 and Fraser No. 2 for the Wimbledon Tournament which begins Monday.

Fleck Leaves Canadian Open

MONTREAL (AP)—Jack Fleck, Los Angeles pro and 1955 U.S. Open champion, pulled out of the Canadian Open Golf Championship Saturday in a huff because he wasn't allowed to park where he had been accustomed to leaving his car.

Harvey Raynor, PGA tournament supervisor, said Fleck would be fined $100.

Fleck was told by an attendant to park at another spot near the clubhouse. Apparently some spectators had parked in the area reserved for competitors.

WHITE SOX SIGN JOEL HORLEN

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)— Joel Horlen, who pitched two victorious games for Oklahoma State University to boost the Cowboys to the NCAA baseball title, has signed a bonus contract with the Chicago White Sox.

Horlen, 6 foot 1, 180-pounder with a 9-1 season record, did not disclose the amount of the bonus but called it "very substantial." He was signed by Chicago scout Jack Sheehan after the championship NCAA game at Omaha.

During 1943 the only pennies minted in the United States were zinc coated steel. This was to conserve copper for war defense purposes.

CHICAGO (AP)— The advance in butcher hog prices through the first four days this week made it the sharpest for any week in more than a year, more than recovering the broad declines of last week.

With supplies totaling only 37,000 head for the five days, prices showed no signs of breaking until they turned slightly weak on Friday. The offerings, off 15 per cent from the previous week, were the smallest for a week since in March.

Barrows and gilts advanced 75 cents to $1 a hundredweight but sows were not better than steady.

More than half this week's cattle supply, the smallest in eight weeks, came in on Monday but prices turned strong thereafter and the market for slaughter steers showed its first net gain in 10 weeks with gains running to $1 a hundredweight. Most of the advance was on choice grade.

Offerings of prime steers continued seasonally scarce but about 72 per cent of the supply graded choice.

Spring slaughter lambs declined 50 cents to $1 although the sheep supply for the week was about 60 per cent old crop shorn lambs and yearlings. The old crop lambs and yearlings were weak to 50 cents lower and ewes steady to weak.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—A wait-and-see stock market milled unevenly this week as volume declined to the smallest since last August.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed the week unchanged at $223.70.

Volume sank to 13,125,302 shares from 15,468,114 a week ago and was the lightest since 12,270,245 shares changed hands in the week ended Aug. 23, 1958.

The drop in activity was perhaps the most significant thing about the week's market. Daily trading average was 2,625,060 shares—a fall of more than a million shares below the 3,638,004 which was the daily average for the entire first five months of this year.

Brokers said this was a case of extreme caution, that many traders and investors had taken to the sidelines. They were waiting, first, to see whether they could buy stocks at appreciably lower prices and, second, to be ready to hop on the bandwagon if a new upward drive begins.

Such factors as the deadlocked Geneva conference and the steel labor negotiations were also cited as breeders of caution. Most, but not all economic signposts, seemed to be pointing upward. Industrial output climbed to another record last month. Auto dealers' new car sales in the first third of June were at the highest rate for such a period in any month since April 1956. Personal income moved to another peak in May, as did the cost of living.

On the other hand, prices for copper were under pressure and there was a contra-seasonal slackening in home building in May.

The stock market, which has had a habit of ignoring news of various kinds during the past year, seemed to pursue a course of its own. Prices declined sharply Tuesday, culminating three days of slow retreat. Wednesday the market rallied vigorously. The rally continued early Thursday but then ran afoul of profit taking.

The Friday session was a stalemate, relieved from boredom by excitement over the proposed merger of Texaco with Superior Oil of California. Superior Oil wound up the week with a net gain of 75 points, closing at 1,825, while Texaco advanced 2¼ to 79¾.

U.S. government bonds advanced for the second straight week but the gains were small and the market thin. Corporate securities continued to drift lower on smaller turnover.

Trading volume in the government bond market is far below what over-the-counter dealers consider normal. Much of the activity is professional they say, with retail interest conspicuously absent. This tends to create a weak tone in which slight gains of the past two weeks would quickly evaporate under any real pressure.

Trading declined to $26,205,000 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $30,874,200 the previous week and $26,647,000 the corresponding week in 1958.

MOST GRAINS SHOW GOOD GAINS FOR 2ND WEEK IN ROW

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Setbacks were few and small in grain futures trading this week and all but a few contracts on the Board of Trade racked up good gains for the second successive week.

The July soybean contract was the only loser. July corn came through with no net change and nearby oats months advanced only minor fractions. Several deliveries came out with gains of from one to two cents, some with three cents or more while 1960 crop wheat months moved ahead by five cents.

Volume of trading was one of the heaviest in several weeks with prices reacting to a variety of influences.

Throughout the week, most interest centered on the wheat harvest with the trade generally expressing surprise time after time at the different price levels in Oklahoma and Kansas and the virtual absence of hedge selling on the major grain exchanges.

While new crop wheat in Oklahoma brought prices above the government's price support figure, Kansas producers were up against markets as much as 15 cents under the support and appeared determined to put the yield either in storage for higher prices or in the government loan.

The strongest single bullish influence came at the end of the week and affected feed grains mostly. It was a report by the Department of Agriculture that the total spring and fall pig crops this year will be 10 per cent larger than in 1958 and up 16 per cent from the 1948-57 average.

Despite the outlook so far for another bumper corn crop, dealers moved fast to buy the distant crop deliveries.

Oats also derived support from persistent reports of plant disease in the crop while soybeans were strengthened by higher soybean meal prices. However, July soybeans sagged in consequence of selling by the Commodity Credit Corp. of loan defaulted stocks on Midwest markets. The CCC has sold about 11 million bushels since June 1.

Wheat finished the week ⅝-3¼ cents a bushel higher for the 1959 crop deliveries, July $1.86¼-⅛, and 5-5⅜ cents higher for the 1960 crop months; corn unchanged to 2½ cents higher, July $1.26¾-⅜; oats ¼-1⅜ higher, July new type contract 66⅜; rye 3¼-4 cents higher, July $1.26¼-26; soybeans 1½ lower on July to 3⅜ higher on the new crop contracts, July $2.23¼-⅜.

BIG FOUR TALKS BREAK OFF IN STALEMATE, SILENCE

er the Soviets push the closer the Allies seem to get.

3. On the basis of Lloyd's views, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan remains as hopeful as ever that an eventual accord will be reached with the Russians over Berlin. The British still intend to argue for a summit conference no later than the fall, even if the foreign ministers fail to end the Berlin cris.

4. The Allies must stand ready to reconsider their intention to resume the foreign ministers' talks here July 13 in the light of developments. Provocative actions by the Communist side should not be allowed to go unchallenged. Similarly the Allies should try to avoid unnecessarily irritating the Soviets and their East German satellite over the Berlin issue.

Khrushchev and East German Communist chief Walter Ulbricht, in a communique winding up their Moscow talks, appeared to signal the course of a developing diplomatic offensive. They called for early summit discussions to settle the "most urgent international problems, including West Berlin."

Between now and the July 13 resumption date, leaders of East and West are expected to exchange notes on the thorny problem of a summit conference.

In their diplomatic exchanges they also will bring up other issues that divide them—on disarmament and European security.

Some diplomats here reported that President Eisenhower and Khrushchev already have exchanged messages in the past week or so.

A pattern of face-to-face consultations between Western leaders also is likely. Macmillan is thinking of calling at some key Allied capitals, including Washington, to press his ideas about an unconditional summit meeting.

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS

CHICAGO (AP)— Estimated livestock receipts for Monday are 10,000 hogs, 21,000 cattle and 1,500 sheep.

CUPID INTERFERES

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Eastern Airlines is dropping its age requirement for stewardesses from 21 to 19 because of marriage inroads. "We need 560 stewardesses," William J. Allen, airlines director here, said Saturday. "Cupid is our worst enemy. Our girls get married too fast."

Pike School Board Lets Construction Bid

PITTSFIELD — The Board of Education of the Pittsfield Community School District No. 10 at a meeting on Friday, June 19, awarded a contract for construction of a band and lunch room at the East Pike High School in Milton, Ill., to Mr. J. B. (Barney) Petty for the sum of $13,275.00.

Mr. Petty was one of three bidders and submitted the low bid, other bidders were K. C. Barber and Leon Smith of Pittsfield. The contract for the jobs call for completion not later than September 1, 1959.

The project includes cafeteria and band rooms to join the East Pike High school building on the west. The west wall of the present gymnasium will serve as the east wall of the lunch room.

Greene County Brucellosis Free

CARROLLTON — Greene county has been declared a modified certified Brucellosis free area from May 12, 1959 to May 12, 1962 according to an announcement made this week by Stillman Stanard, director of the Illinois Department of Agriculture.

A letter containing the above information was received by John Price, chairman of the Greene County Board of Supervisors. Greene county is one of 34 counties out of 102 counties in the state so designated.

Greene county has the honor of being the first county considered as a beef cattle area to complete testing. The goal is to have the entire state brucellosis free as quickly as possible.

In Greene county 10,000 beef breeding animals were tested and 1600 dairy animals. There was an infection rate of less than 1 per cent in individual cattle and 5 per cent in herds.

State Legislature

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Illinois lawmakers have eight working days left in which to hammer out a tax program for the next two years and to settle more than a score of questions left unresolved for months.

House and Senate members will meet Monday to launch what promises to be the most tumultuous week of the six-month session. More than 1,100 bills await consideration in the Assembly—upwards of 600 in the House, and 500 in the Senate.

Revenue Program

First priority will be given to Gov. Stratton's revenue program, caught in the crossfire between Republicans and Democrats on one hand, and Cook County and downstate Democrats on the other.

The three-fold program calls for a half cent increase in sales and use taxes, a 50 per cent hike in liquor taxes, and a broadening of the sales and use tax base to bring in dozens of new enterprises.

Half-Cent Increase

Administration leaders appear to be headed for success with the half cent increase, despite stubborn opposition from Chicago Democrats. The liquor levy is stalled in House committee, where attempts will be made to pry it loose this week for a vote on the floor.

As for the broadening bills, the House defeated them by six votes last week, but Stratton's Senate leaders promptly laid plans to reintroduce them in hopes the House could be persuaded to change its mind.

To Offset Spending

Stratton proposed the tax measures to offset increased state spending of 286 million dollars over the two-year budget period—much of it devoted to a sharply increased outlay for state aid to schools.

The school aid figure has yet to be determined by the Assembly. The Senate gave Stratton what he recommended — a $250 per pupil level. But the House raised the figure to $262.

FEPC Legislation

Fair Employment Practices Commission legislation, bogged down in the Senate, will be up for a critical vote Monday in the Appropriations Committee of the upper chamber.

As in previous years, it lost ground after clearing the House, but Negro members in the House retaliated this session by threatening to impede action on pending Senate bills until FEPC receives favorable consideration.

Duel Over SIU

The tense parliamentary duel between two veteran senators over the question of an engineering school for Southern Illinois University also will be waged in the closing days.

Sen. Everett R. Peters (R-St. Joseph), a legislative patron of the University of Illinois, is pitted in this contest against Sen. R. G. Crisenberry (R - Murphysboro), SIU's legislative mentor.

JP Revamp

Showdowns also are brewing for measures revising the justice of the peace system, outlawing the Communist party in Illinois, and proposing to amend the state Constitution's revenue article.

Two election contests affecting seats in the 40th and 46th Districts will be brought to the House floor for a deciding vote. Democrat Willis Stamm of East Peoria is seeking to unseat Rep. Ray C. Heiple, Washington Republican. Toby Barry of Ladd has contested the election of William Hollerich of Spring Valley. Both Barry and Hollerich are Democrats.

U.S. Pays Brazil $80 Million For Use Of Island

WASHINGTON (AP)— A four-year agreement for the use of a 10-square mile Brazilian island as a missile tracking station is costing the United States between 70 and 90 million dollars.

The figure—classified as secret—is deleted in testimony released Saturday by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, but is implicit in statements allowed to stand, as well as in 1958 testimony.

Independent sources indicated the actual figure will approximate 80 million dollars.

The cost of the base—defended by the Defense Department as vital to the Atlantic missile range—was repeatedly questioned by members of the Senate committee in hearings on the new military aid program.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) asked if the cost was not excessive. Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho) termed the base "the most expensive piece of real estate in history."

The agreement giving the United States the right to use Fernando de Noronha Island, 250 miles out in the Atlantic off Brazil's northern hump, was signed in 1957.

GO TO CHURCH

Herter Leaves Talks With Air Of Relief

Four conference.

In coming to Geneva, Herter expected to have to go through a long process of negotiations on which no agreement was possible in order to build up the Western case for German reunification and for a permanent settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Along with Selwyn Lloyd of Britain and Maurice Couve de Murville of France, both diplomatic veterans, he planned to use patience and play the waiting game with Gromyko to try to get the one agreement which then seemed possible. That was an agreement to lift the immediate Soviet threat to Berlin.

But the waiting game and the bait of a summit conference were not enough. Six weeks of negotiations have failed to remove the danger from the Berlin situation. It may indeed be somewhat greater now in Western eyes because the negotiations have served to sharpen the deadlock and dash the earlier hope for an agreement.

Gromyko has used the conference to emphasize Soviet support for East Germany and to try to blacken the reputation of West Germany with charges of aggressive preparation for a new war.

Throughout the six weeks, Gromyko usually held the initiative and much of the time he was the dominant figure. Herter, Lloyd and Couve de Murville never succeeded in figuring out an effective offensive strategy.

Herter's inexperience, his need to proceed cautiously and to rely heavily on the advice of others, probably was an important factor in this situation.

In the main he was following a broad strategy of negotiation which had been worked out by Dulles months before. His ability as an architect of major U.S. and Allied policies remains to be fully assessed in the light of his work in the months ahead.

Elderly Couple Dies In Fire At Resort Lodge

BRAINERD, Minn. (AP) — An elderly couple died Saturday and 22 other persons were injured fleeing a fire that tore through Breezy Point Lodge, one of the showplace resorts of Minnesota's northwoods.

Guests leaped from second story windows and slid down blankets and bedsheets as flames demolished the 33-year-old log building built by the late magazine publisher and sportsman, Capt. Billy Fawcett.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hildinger of Cleveland were killed trying to reach safety.

Hildinger, 77, jumped from a second floor window and landed on his head. His wife, 70, tried to slide down a rope and fell 20 feet to the ground. She died in a Brainerd hospital.

Thirteen of the injured were treated for minor injuries and were released from the hospital. Nine others were hospitalized with more serious injuries, most of them suffered in leaps from the building.

A spokesman for the luxury resort estimated loss at more than a million dollars.

The blaze, breaking out about 5:30 a.m. near the kitchen, ate quickly through the three-story wood structure.

End Art Course At Pittsfield

PITTSFIELD—The first of two art courses, sponsored by the University of Illinois, was completed Friday, after two weeks work from June 8 through June 19. The course was a workshop type introduction to oil painting and gave two undergraduate semester hours credit.

The instructor was William Robert Youngman who introduced the medium of oil paint and they studied materials and technical possibilities of the medium by means of lectures, demonstrations and class experimentation. The 14 members of the class painted a series of pictures from still life and landscape. Their works were displayed on Friday in the Pittsfield Court Yard.

Those taking this first course were Mrs. Mary Lowe, Mrs. Helen Schimmel, Mrs. Marie Miles, Mrs. Frances Willard of Pittsfield; Mrs. Mary Roberts, Mrs. Eva Berry, Mrs. Jessie Ewers of Pleasant Hill; Mrs. Marie Goltz and Mrs. Truman Borrowman of New Canton.

Mrs. Veralee Wilson, Hamburg; Mrs. Marie Daigh, Mrs. Helen Brim, Perry; Mrs. Judy Niekamp, Camp Point; and Mrs. Lila Jones of Sullivan.

A second course in art designing for school teachers, group leaders and others will begin on Monday, June 22, in Pittsfield High school at 9 a.m. and continue six hours daily Monday through Friday, July 3. The instructor of this class will be Harry F. Breen of the U. of I.

COOKIE WENT FOR KILLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Manager Cookie Lavagetto of the Washington Senators had a feeling that Harmon Killebrew would make the team this year.

"Maybe Mickey Mantle has more power," Cookie said of the Killer. "Maybe Rocky Colavito and Bob Cerv can hit a ball as far, but Killebrew will have 'em bringing out the tape measure for some of his homers, too."

Ike Is Winning Battle Of Budget

While the Democrats are not adverse to clobbering him when they can—as they showed by Sen ate rejection of his nomination of Lewis L. Strauss to be secretary of commerce — they apparently have decided that the country is in no mood for high geared spending programs at this time.

After the 1958 elections, Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas was talking about a "bold housing program which will set as its goal a home for every American family." He spoke of the need for jet age airports and for a "courageous urban renewal program."

Circumstances have forced Johnson to compromise. Despite their lopsided majorities in both houses the Democrats evidently can't command sufficient votes to over-ride Eisenhower on any bread-and-butter issue.

So it turns out that Johnson and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) are helping Eisenhower get almost what he wants.

DON'T, DON'T TELL THE ENDING

Alan Ladd and Carolyn Jones are shown in a scene from the suspense loaded new release from United Artists, THE MAN IN THE NET. The ending is one that you will remember for a long, long time. HONG KONG CONFIDENTIAL is co-featured in the big double program starting Sunday, June 28th at the TIMES THEATRE.

State C. Of C. Head Raps Deficit Spending As Road To Inflation

"Businessmen must take steps to thwart the growing pattern of National Socialism and destroy the illusion that you can get more out of the tax dollar than you put in," David L. Harrington, president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce declared at a dinner meeting Friday evening at the Dunlap hotel.

"We must squarely face the primary business problem of high taxes and increased government spending by discarding partisan politics in order to avert or at least control a devastating end product—inflation," he said.

Composite Thinking

Harrington said the views and stands taken by the state organization during its 41 years of activity has always represented the composite thinking of businessmen throughout Illinois.

"While the early activities of the organization were confined to local and civic problems, so has the state chamber expanded to keep pace with big government. More than 90% of the chamber's activities are now directed toward legislative research designed to formulate laws which do not discriminate against businessmen."

Budget Balanced 5 Times

"In the past 27 years, the national budget has been balanced only five times—yet, congress is considering a bill right now to increase deficit spending. The interest alone on the national debt amounts to about eight billion dollars and represents approximately ten cents of every tax dollar."

Political Activity

Harrington called on all businessmen to "take an active part in politics at all levels of government."

He said that businessmen should consider running for office themselves regardless of political party. He urged support of conservative government in the form of both time and money.

Mr. Harrington is chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the Reuben H. Donnelley Corporation of Chicago.

Hugh Gibson Host

Hugh Gibson, president of Hugh Gibson Building Contractor, Inc., Jacksonville, was host for the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce dinner held at the banquet room of the Dunlap hotel Friday evening. The meeting was one of a series of 17 scheduled by the State Chamber this year to better acquaint Illinois businessmen with current state and national economic and legislative issues. Mr. Gibson is a director of the statewide organization.

The banquet room was filled to capacity with businessmen from a number of west central Illinois cities including Arenzville, Ashland, Beardstown, Bluffs, Carrollton, Chapin, Greenfield, Meredosia, Pittsfield, Roodhouse, Rushville, Virginia, Waverly, White Hall, Winchester and Jacksonville.

John J. White, vice president of Beardstown Mills Company assisted with arrangements for the meeting and was co-host for the evening.

Panel Discussion

A panel discussion by members of the executive staff of the State Chamber focused upon such pertinent subjects as education, labor relations, agriculture-business relations, federal, state and local taxation, social security and unemployment compensation, water resources and state highway policy.

The panel was led by Ormond F. Lyman, executive vice president, and included Melvin J. Lentz, executive assistant; John F. Tharp, labor relations manager; Vernon G. Wahlberg, legislative manager; George J. Lawrence, taxation manager; William T. Diviney, Jr., organization service manager; and David C. Hanna, education manager.

Former Residents Conduct Deaf Church Services

McLEANSBORO, Ill. (AP)—Regular church services for the deaf in four southern Illinois communities are being conducted in sign language by a young farm couple, themselves deaf.

The husband and wife team, Bert and Phyllis Kuykendell, both graduated from the Jacksonville School for the deaf. They were residents of Jacksonville while attending school here. Kuykendell, 32, a native of the Carmi area, has been deaf since childhood. His wife, born in Rockford, cannot remember sound. The couple was married in 1945.

Now farming for a living in the Delafield area near McLeansboro, they take up their unique ministry on Sundays, traveling on a schedule arranged for them by the Southern Illinois Methodist Conference.

Their work for the church is financed by contributions from those who "hear" them. Kuykendell is working on a course of study which leads to ordination in the Methodist Church as an elder.

Presently they are holding services on the first Sunday of each month at Wesley Methodist Church, Mount Vernon; second Sunday at First Methodist Church of Harrisburg; third Sunday at the First Methodist Church of Mount Carmel and fourth Sunday at Wesley Foundation building in Carbondale.

Plane Adequately Equipped For Defense: Corder Tells Newsmen

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — A U.S. tailgunner wounded in a MIG jet attack said Saturday he thought his Navy plane was adequately armed. The trouble was, no one aboard dreamed of a Red attack.

Still heavily bandaged and suffering from multiple wounds, aviation Electrician's mate 2-C Donald Corder talked to reporters from a hospital stretcher.

In view of Washington criticism that the Navy Mercator plane's forward guns were inoperative when it was attacked by the MIGs off North Korea Tuesday, reporters asked Corder if he thought the plane was adequately armed.

Corder replied that he thought "we were amply protected." He said he doubted that a forward turret gunner could have got in a shot anyway because the MIGs, believed from Communist North Korea, attacked from the rear.

The Navy in Washington said the forward guns were deliberately made inoperative to provide room for other equipment when the Mercator was converted from antisubmarine to reconnaissance duty.

"Nobody who flies these missions ever thinks he is going to be attacked," Corder said. "I was more surprised than scared."

Corder of Jacksonville and Farmer City, Ill., was the first of the 14-man crew to spot the MIGs. He also was the only one wounded.

"They didn't try to look us over or anything," Corder said. "They started opening fire with no warning...There was no hesitation in their attack at all as they closed in.

"There was quite a bit of confusion. Everybody was talking at once. I was asking the pilot's permission to return fire. I called to several times. Either the second or third time, he heard me and answered, "Tail turret open fire. Tail turret open fire.'

"I dropped the mike and started tracking. As I was getting a line on the lead airplane I got hit. It blew me out of the turret. I saw sparks and red hot lead flying. When I got hit the MIG was right behind me, maybe 500 feet."

Corder crawled forward. First ordnance man Richard Eugene Nelson, Jamestown, Kans., "covered me with his body for protection when a few seconds later I again heard bullets hitting the airplane on the MIGs' third run."

Nelson and Ens. Donald R. Sullivan, second navigator, applied a tourniquet to stop leg bleeding during the flight back to Japan.

Corder said he thought he could have got the MIG if it had not wounded him first, and declared: "I'd like another chance."

Rear Adm. Frederic S. Withington, U.S. Naval commander in Japan who introduced Corder to reporters, slapped his knee with delight and gently patted the injured airman at this remark.

Withington said, "My friend Corder is a brave man" and "I am proud to be in the same Navy."

The admiral said Corder should recover completely in about two months. Corder suffered a broken knee and more than 40 wounds from shrapnel and flying debris. He was given an injection to ease the pain shortly before he talked with reporters.

At Corder's bedside in this Japanese City is his wife, Mrs. Toshiko Corder. She was flown to Atsugi air field south of here Friday from Iwakuni where she and her husband make their home. Naval officials drove her from the landing field the rest of the way to the hospital.

(Telephone Pioneer 2-5520)

WINCHESTER—Members of the Morgan-Scott Home Bureau, day and evening units, held district meetings this week with Miss Hazel Graves, home adviser, presenting the major lesson entitled "Stretching the Food Dollar," a subject dear to the hearts of all those in attendance.

Miss Graves spoke to the evening unit Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ed Sutton when the Winchester group entertained the Bluffs women telling them of ten different ways to save on food expenses for the average family. Points included were planning meals ahead and making a shopping list of essentials, keeping posted on food prices and good special prices on certain foods, knowledge of different brands and grades in relationship to quality and purchase of seasonable foods including fruits and vegetables when the market price is below normal.

On Friday the home adviser spoke to women of Winchester and Glasgow when Bluffs was hostess to them at the Civic Hall there. Mrs. Henry Lawshe presided over the business session that day when the group voted as the evening unit had, to give $5 to the Morgan-Scott office kitchen to replenish supplies.

Other business included announcement of the trip to the Municipal Opera in St. Louis on Tuesday, August 25, and members of the day unit are to have their reservations to the Jacksonville office as soon as possible.

Announcement was made Wednesday evening that the July meeting will be at the Baptist church on July 14 and would be Local Achievement Night for members of the two 4-H clubs sponsored by the Evening Unit, namely, the Winchester Workers Club and Topnotchers Club. A demonstration will be given by one member of each club and the girls will display their work in the varied projects taken during the past year. The program for the evening will be a hair styling demonstration presented by the Campbell Beauty Salon.

The selected subject, "Women of Libya," was given by Mrs. Betsy Krueger at the Evening meeting presided over by Mrs. Joan Bown and on Friday by Mrs. Oma Edwards of Glasgow. They told the clubwomen of the progress made in recent years in the culture, education and standard of living of the women of Libya.

1958 Livestock Income Increases

URBANA — Farm record summaries of 1958 operations show that most Illinois hog, beef cattle and dairy farmers had their best year since 1951. Although grain farm earnings rose slightly over 1957, they dropped below those of 1956, according to A. G. Mueller, University of Illinois agricultural economist.

Farm and family earnings on 220 acre hog farms in northern Illinois averaged $13,186 compared with $10,241 in 1957. Earnings of southern Illinois hog farmers averaged $6,934 compared with $5,744 in 1957. When hog prices dropped in 1955, the average was only $3,284 in the north and $2,688 in the south.

Credits Higher Value

Mueller credits rising hog farmers' incomes to higher value of production per farm. But cash operating expenses and depreciation charges have been climbing since 1951. The average capital investment on these 220-acre hog farms in northern Illinois was $120,000. Interest charges alone add up to $5,160 a year and must be paid out of the earnings. On rented farms the earnings are divided between tenant and landlord.

Beef Cattle 'Tops'

Beef cattle farms made the highest earnings last year since 1951. The average was $11,946 compared with $9,312 in 1957. In 1955, when cattle prices dropped, earnings averaged only $2,079. Mueller explains these improved earnings as due to higher cattle prices and higher volume of feeding on many farms. But, when a charge for interest on investment is taken out, almost $6,000 must be deducted from the total.

Illinois dairymen also had their best year since 1951. Earnings of a typical group of 220-acre northern Illinois farms averaged $9,207 compared with $7,311 in 1957 and a low of $3,635 in 1955. In southern Illinois, dairy farms of the same size made $7,582 last year compared with $4,617 in 1957.

Dairymen have faced steadily rising operating costs for the past three years, Mueller points out. Only by keeping their value of production rising have they been able to show reasonable returns for their labor, investment and management.

Grain Farms Show Increase

Earnings on 220-acre northern Illinois grain farms averaged $8,110 in 1958 compared with $7,564 the year before. Southern Illinois farms of a similar size averaged $6,037 in 1958 and $4,044 in 1957.

In 1956, when crop yields were unusually favorable, northern Illinois grain farmers earned an average of $10,191 and southern Illinois farmers averaged $9,324. Mueller explains that lower earnings this last year were due to lower yields, lower grain prices and rising costs.

Yields, Prices Uncertain

For 1959, crop yields and grain prices will be the big uncertainties for several more months. Livestock farm earnings will depend much on hog and cattle prices. Operating costs will probably continue to increase.

The farm and family earnings figures reported here are the amount a farmer has left after he has paid all cash operating and depreciation costs. If the farm is tenant operated, the landlord and tenant must divide their earnings from this amount. The income that remains is what is left for family living, non-farm taxes, interest, debt payments and saving and investment. Mueller emphasizes that these income figures taken from actual farm records will differ from estimates made by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In analyzing farm records, he uses different methods from those used by USDA economists.

368,206,102 Bushel '58 Corn Under Price Prop Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Agriculture Department said Friday corn farmers had put a total of 368,206,102 bushels of 1958-crop corn under price support loans and purchase agreements through May 30.

Since May 31 fell on a Sunday this year, the final date for putting 1958-crop corn under loan was Monday, June 1. Corn put under loan on this last day was not included in Friday's report.

The department said the total placed under loan through May 30 compares with 328,831,550 bushels of 1957-crop corn put under support loans through May 15, 1958. It gave no comparable figure through all of May 1958.

Of the 368,206,102 bushels of 1958 corn placed under support through May 30, about 40 per cent was from farms not in compliance with 1958 acreage allotments.

Most of this noncompliance corn was from Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and South Dakota.

Through May, producers had repaid loans covering 25,927,201 bushels of 1958 corn.

Dairy calves can digest as much as 9 percent butterfat in milk. But at that rate they will scour more than calves getting only 3 per cent butterfat in their milk ration.

CATTLE BOOM CONTINUES

Price Prospects Favorable for Balance of Year

The cattle situation is showing most of the typical indications of a boom. Although present prices are high, continuation of the high rate of build-up in cattle numbers could cause serious troubles in the future. The increase in cow numbers was not extremely large last year—only 19 percent of the total increase in cattle numbers. Beef supplies under normal marketings from current numbers of breeding stock would not be unduly high. However, a large increase in cow numbers in the next few years could provide market supplies of beef far in excess of our population growth and could lead to a serious price collapse.

Slaughter of cows for the first quarter of the year was 24 percent below that of a year earlier. Cattle slaughter this year has largely consisted of fed cattle and culls. Cattle that offer some possibilities of further profit have been held either for additional feeding or for calving.

With the sharp build-up in cattle numbers that is occurring, the situation becomes more sensitive to range and crop conditions. A drouth in the range area or adverse crop conditions could bring sharp price reactions in both slaughter and replacement cattle markets.

Since last October fed cattle prices have followed almost an identical pattern with that of the previous year, but have stayed slightly higher.

Recently there has been some decline in fed cattle prices. Last year about a $4 decline occurred in prices of choice cattle from the last of April to the first of August. Marketing of fed cattle will likely be high during this summer period, but it is doubtful whether prices will decline as they did last year.

In the past few weeks the number of cattle slaughtered under federal inspection has been equal to or slightly greater than that a year ago. This is an increase in slaughter rate from the first quarter of this year, when total numbers slaughtered were about 7 percent below a year ago. Average weights have also been heavier, so total beef production has been a little larger than it was last year.

Total slaughter so far this year has been less, but slaughter of fed cattle has averaged about 8 percent larger than last year. Prices of fed cattle have been strongly supported by lack of other kinds of cattle coming to market. This lack of supply of lower grade cattle has caused a narrow spread of market prices that will be likely to continue throughout the year.

Demand for replacement cattle and movement to the country have continued at a very high level. The average cost of stocker and feeder cattle for the last week in May at the ten major markets was about $2.25 above a year earlier. While the movement of replacement cattle seems to have dropped some in May, shipments to the Corn Belt in April were almost half again as large as a year earlier. For the period January through April, they averaged one-fourth more than in the previous year. This heavy movement indicates that the supply of fed cattle coming to the market will continue high. However, with small supplies of nonfed cattle, the supply of beef per person will probably be about 80 pounds, the same as it was last year.

New Life For An Old Cob Burner

Illinois River Landmark Now A 'Boatel'

Just a few years ago most grain elevators were built of wood. They often became afire; usually the loss was total.

The fire laddies, of course, were summoned to the scene to stall damage to adjacent property. Their attempts to do anything about the destruction of the elevator were invariably fruitless.

And they always hated to go back to the fire house.

Some gink in the area was sure to come up with this: "Well, at least you saved the cob burner."

This, somehow, was always good for a laugh.

In every Midwest county you can think of you can see a cob burner standing aloof and alone. Nearby you can find the foundation stones of what had been a grain elevator.

No Has Been

There's a cob burner on the Illinois river, just over the levee at Naples. It hadn't been used for a long time and its prospects were bleak. Thanks to some imagination and industry, it has bounced into a new life and riverboat pilots now toot their air horns as they sail by.

For the cob burner is now a two-storied "boatel."

This cob burner, fashioned strongly of the best bricks made in Alsey, was built in 1938 by the Continental Grain company, which owned the Naples grain elevator. The riverside elevator was built of fine northern pine back in 1885. The Continental people built much larger and more efficient elevators along the river and they abandoned the Naples plant.

Paul H. Vannier, publisher of the weekly papers in Bluffs and Meredosia, has been a river and boating fan ever since he was old enough to float a chip. He bought the elevator and decided to build a "boatel."

"Boatel" is a relatively new term. Some folks who read this are old enough to remember when lodging sites along the highways were called "tourist courts." That name was dropped in favor of "motel."

A "boatel" is a "motel" on the river. There aren't many of them. They are rather prominent along the Tennessee river. The Naples boatel is the only one on the lower reaches of the Illinois river.

A Success Story

Nothing has grown in America in the last decade like the outboard boat. For ten years, percentage-wise, it has been the fastest growing business in the land. Some years it increased only 100% per annum. In the past two years it has ballooned 400% a year.

Pioneers in the outboard motor boat field are now true nabobs, able to pay their corporation tax and excess profit tax and income tax and still have enough left over to wed movie stars, if they so incline.

The Vannier Boatel sets on the east atop the foundations of the old elevator. To the south is the old Naples wharf, built long ago of vertical slabs of limestone. The legend is that it was built by slaves. This seems hardly possible, for Illinois came into the Union in 1819 as a free state. In fact, 30 years earlier the Northwest territory was proclaimed "free forever." But the constitution of the new state provided for the caring of certain indentured servants, and U.S. marshals were few and far between. In fact, Chief Justice Lockwood of Jacksonville found, although he was an unhappy finder, that the welfare of "certain indentured and bound individuals" was "protected" by the new constitution.

THIS PHOTO shows the rejuvenated cob burner. The lower apartment boasts a screened porch; the upper deck permits casual sunbathing, or a long view of the river while sheltered in the shade of a fancy, $49.50 umbrella. At extreme top is a martin house, already occupied.

The Old Landing

So maybe the Naples wharf, 135 feet wide, was built by slave labor. But where the limestone slabs came from, and how they got to Naples, is protected by the lapses of history.

The cob burner was adjusted to its new role something like this: The inner lining of fire bricks was taken out. Apertures were busted to make room for the doors and windows. Two floors were put in; a lid was fashioned to cover the top. A section of the two rooms, 16½ feet wide, was panelled off for the bath. Both were decorated in the motif of the marine—and here is where Vannier's ever-loving-frau, Dorothy, who is keen in decorations and clever with the needle, made fine contributions.

Turning something that was moribund and off the tax lists into a going concern is nothing new for Vannier and his imagination.

Church-Apartment House

In Bluffs, the Methodist Protestant and the Methodist Episcopal congregations decided to unite. They moved to the brick church on Route 100, owned by the ME group. The wooden MP edifice on the Neelyville road was abandoned. Vannier bought it 12 years ago and, despite the doubts of the community, he changed it into an apartment house, five five-room apartments. He rented it only to returning servicemen and their families. With the exception of a lone apartment for one month, it has been completely occupied up to now. And both the village of Bluffs and the county of Scott have a valuable listing in their tax rolls.

Thusfar the boatel has enjoyed much attention. Most everybody likes to drive over to the river and look it over. On its opening day maybe 400 people or more were there; exactly 290 signed the guest roster.

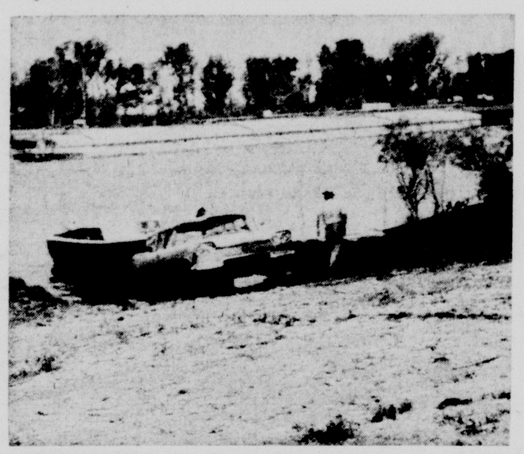

Two of the visitors were from Chicago. She asked her husband, "Why did they build it round?" He said he'd try to find out. Later he reported that it had originally been a cob burner, "a sort of incinerator for agricultural debris."

The Martins Know

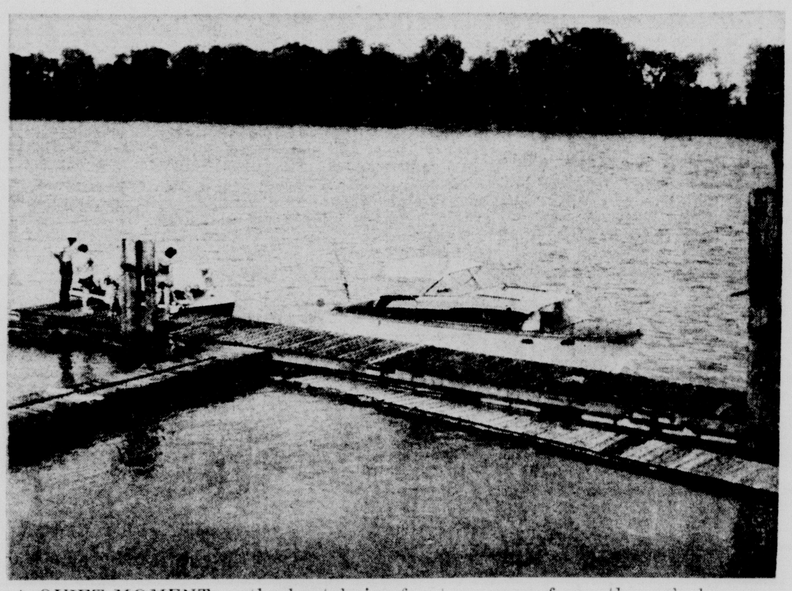

A few words about the martin house atop the revamped "incinerator" will bring this piece to a close. It was furnished by Harry Merriman of Jacksonville, who married Belle Vannier. It is a first-rate residence for martins, as it was designed and built by the late H. A. Molohan, who long handled with distinction the manual training department of the Illinois School for the Deaf.

Within an hour after erection a pair of martins took residence. Mind you, this was the middle of May, very late in the nesting schedule.

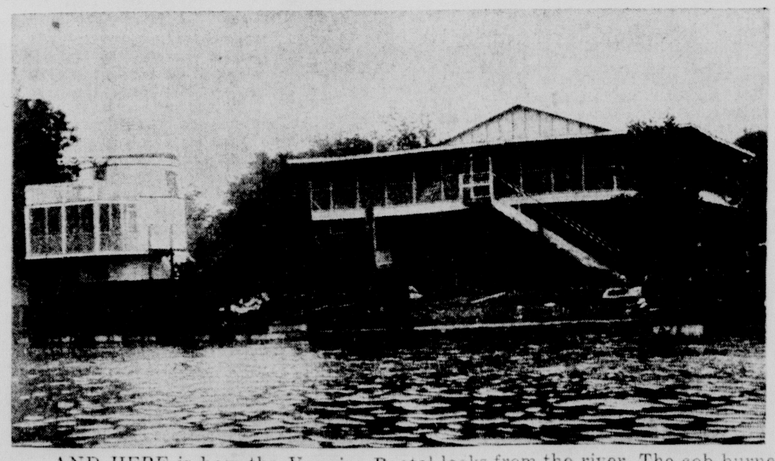

So watch out when you call somebody "bird-brained." Martins are smart enough to know a good spot when they come upon it.

THE RIVER is both an important artery of transportation and a recreation mecca. Here a Springfield man places his boat in the water as the barges in the background scud toward the Mississippi.

A QUIET MOMENT on the boatel riverfront as seen from the cob burner.

AND HERE is how the Vannier Boatel looks from the river. The cob burner at left is connected with the clubhouse by a suspension bridge made of steel cable and woven wire fencing, with a floor of pine painted marine green.

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

(A round-up of the week's work, activities and observations at the University of Illinois Dixon Springs Experiment Station near Robbs in southern Illinois, prepared by H. A. Cate).

In the center of a large field was a small pen. About a quarter of a mile away was a band of sheep. Upon command, Roy, a Border Collie belonging to Arthur Allen, streaked down the side of the field behind the sheep and drove them through a course of gates by alternating lightning-fast darts and mesmerization, finally penning the flock to win the North American Sheep Dog Trials. This happened on Sunday, June 7, at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station.

Roy had plenty of competition in his kennel mate, Nan, who placed second. Fly and Jean, owned and expertly handled by Kenneth Odum from Benton, placed third and fourth respectively. Fan, a top dog in anybody's book, owned and handled by Max West of Omaha, placed fifth.

Working Dogs

Border Collies are one of the few truly working breeds of dogs and one of the principal breeds for sheep work. One good, well-handled dog can easily replace several men in the rapid movement and herding of sheep. The breed association for Border Collies requires, as one of the qualifications for registry, that the dog pass an examination on working sheep. It is this rule that has maintained the Border Collie as a true working dog.

Annual Picnic

Following the dog trials, the Illinois Purebred Sheep Association held its annual picnic at Lake Glendale. About 100 members and guests feasted on eight barbecued legs of lamb, supplemented with beans, salads, potatoes, cakes and cookies—food that always goes with a sumptuous picnic table. A short tour of the Station pastures and a look at some of the sheep and cattle wound up the day.

Illinois Veterinarians Establish Research Grant

URBANA — The Research Fellowship of the Illinois State Veterinary Medical Association, the first of its kind to be established by a state veterinary medical association, has been granted for the coming year to Dr. M. L. Kaeberle, instructor in clinical medicine in the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

Native of South Dakota

Dr. Kaeberle is a native of South Dakota. He received the B.A. degree from the University of South Dakota in 1950, the B.S. degree from Colorado State University in 1952 and the D.V.M. degree from the same institution in 1954. The following year he was on the staff of the Department of Surgery and Medicine, School of Veterinary Medicine, Kansas State College; from 1955 to 1957 he served as veterinary epidemiologist on an extensive rabies research project with the United States Public Health Service; in 1957 he joined the staff of the University of Illinois. He will receive the M.S. degree in Veterinary Medical Science in February 1960.

Outstanding Scholar

Dr. Kaeberle is an outstanding scholar and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi and other honorary scholastic as well as scientific organizations, including among the latter Phi Zeta. He has been the recipient of the Borden Award, the Roud McCann Scholarship, a University of South Dakota tuition scholarship and a University of Illinois fellowship. Exceptional enthusiasm for and ability in research and scholarship distinguish Dr. Kaeberle's attitude and accomplishments.

With primary interest in clinical medicine, he endorses the spirit and intent of the Illinois Veterinary Medical Association in its support of research to gain new knowledge for more effective preventive and curative medicine.

Dairy science staff members at the University of Illinois recommend adding 80 pounds of molasses or 200 pounds or corn and cob meal to each ton of grass-legume silage. Molasses provides additional sugar for proper bacterial action, and the corn and cob meal prevents the loss of natural sugars due to runoff.

French Horn Virtuso

We were warned that President Charles de Gaulle might be difficult from time to time, and that he is proving to be.

France refuses to allow the stockpiling of U.S. nuclear bombs on French soil unless they are under French control.

Even more sweeping, the French foreign ministry says France will not undertake any new commitments to NATO until more atomic secrets are shared with the French, and until that country is placed on an equal level with America and Britain in matters of strategy, diplomacy and international politics affecting the Big Three.

Our answer to France's refusal to stockpile has been to plan the removal of 200 fighter-bombers from French territory, probably to West Germany. This nation has agreed to stockpile nuclear weapons while leaving control of their vital warheads in American hands.

There has been negotiation on the other points raised by De Gaulle, particularly the question of fuller co-ordination among the Big Three. But so far the discussions have not proved fruitful.

We cannot yield easily on the issue of atomic sharing. Congress always has been disinclined to favor more than a bare minimum of this. Furthermore, we are deeply concerned to limit the testing of nuclear devices, and it is obvious this will be more difficult if more nations have the know-how.

To encourage France in this field could be to undercut our position in the current nuclear test ban talks in Geneva. They have been plodding slowly enough as it is.

Americans who understand De Gaulle fairly well know his intense devotion to his country and are not surprised at his relentless insistence on a bigger place in the sun for France.

But the general is a man of high intellectual capacity, capable of viewing his country's and the world's problems with balance and perspective. He must know there is a line beyond which he cannot go without threatening the security structure of the whole Western world, including France.

Already he has taken the French fleet on a course independent of NATO. Further such action can only undermine this important defense network.

DeGaulle's basic aims for France are admirable. But he dare not press them at the expense of the safety of the world he would make France a bigger part of.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Big Three Western Allies, although stopping short of a complete breakdown, have made major concessions to the Russians on Berlin. In fact, the West has made concessions from the start.

It was more than six months ago that Premier Nikita Khrushchev told the Allies to get their troops out of West Berlin or he would turn over to the East German Communists control of the supply routes to the city. The Allies could have said then:

"We stay. Now let's see you make good on your threats. If you try force, it will be met by force."

Instead, to avoid a conflict which might lead to war, the United States, Britain and France suggested to Russia that all four try to negotiate a peaceful settlement. The result was the foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

The net result—after six weeks of these talks—has been more concessions by the Allies, this time as the talks seem to be reaching a climax which may bring some kind of settlement or blow up the whole meeting.

From the beginning the Allies have insisted they had a right—stemming back to World War II agreements—to keep their troops in West Berlin. Although that city is 110 miles inside communist East Germany, its inhabitants are tied to the West German government.

If they didn't get out — and refusing to get out is the most important point on which the Allies haven't backed down — then, according to Khrushchev's warning, the East German Reds would take control of the supply routes to the city.

This meant the Allies—who refuse to recognize the German Communists as the lawful government of East Germany, a Russian satellite—would have to deal with the East German Reds. This in effect would be recognition.

But once the Reds controlled the supply routes, they could squeeze the city, unless the Allies were willing to use force to stop them, by cutting down on the supplies allowed to go through.

This would threaten the city's economy. If large-scale unemployment followed, as it probably would, the present stability of the city would be shaken. All these things the Allies faced.

So although the Russians had started all this and although the Allies had insisted they had the right to be in Berlin and have free access to the city, these are some of the concessions the Allies made this week:

1. They demanded a Soviet guarantee of their right to get into and out of West Berlin and to keep the city supplied — by rail, road and air — even though East Germans controlled the routes.

By this proposal the Allies dropped their earlier demand for a specific Soviet guarantee of their continued right to be in Berlin as an occupation power.

2. The West said it was ready to accept control of its traffic to West Berlin by the East German Communists, although the West would continue to hold the Russians responsible for keeping the supply lines open to all traffic to Berlin.

Thus the West was attempting to keep the East Germans in the category of mere Soviet agents, not a sovereign power. Nevertheless, the Allies actually would have to deal with East Germans whom they said they would not recognize.

3. The West did not ask the Soviet Union to agree to Allied occupation of Berlin forever. Thus in a sense they were yielding to Soviet pressure, since they were not telling the Russians they'd leave, if ever, only when they pleased.

Instead, the Allies wanted Moscow to agree to their staying in Berlin until all Germany is unified — this seems so far off it was in effect asking for agreement to an indefinite stay — or until some new agreement is reached.

The next move was up to the Soviets who seemed to be thinking hard on what to say now since the Allied concessions, in world public opinion, were obviously an effort to avoid a violent showdown.

Farrell's Little Chat Grooms Couples for Retirement Years

BY MARIE DAERR

Letting the wives in on retirement planning has paid dividends in employe goodwill for Standard Oil Co. of Ohio and its subsidiaries.

In 1949 Sohio launched a program of preretirement counseling sessions with employes due to leave the company three years hence. At Sohio, 65 is retirement age for men. For women, the age can be 60.

In 1953 Harlowe Farrell, manager of annuities and insurance for Sohio, inaugurated a husband-and-wife conference program.

"We feel wives have a big stake in their husband's retirement plans," Farrell explained. "So they as well as their husbands receive an invitation to meet with me for a talk that covers any number of retirement subjects, prompts many questions and, we hope, supplies some answers."

These sessions aren't hurried affairs. Farrell devotes at least an hour and a half to each husband and wife.

He travels thousands of miles yearly to keep dates with soon-to-retire people in other states.

"Big item in the conference is giving the couple a booklet prepared especially for them," Farrell said. "It contains figures on the man's present spendable income and on what the couple will have to spend after retirement.

"On an average, Sohioans get a spendable retirement income equal to 70 per cent of their actual income when working. This is because the deductions for benefit plans and Social Security formerly taken from their pay now are paying off in retirement income, and there is little or no income tax to pay.

"These figures get things down in black and white and set Joe and Mary thinking about wha the situation will be after Joe says goodby to his job."

Also in the interview are tips on such subjects as where and when to apply for Social Security. There is discussion of the advantages and disadvantages of a wife's applying for Social Security at age 62.

There may be talk about what it's like to live in a trailer park, about whether to move to Florida or stay in the home town after retirement, about hobbies, ranging from fishing to photography.

"I tell our people that their biggest problem is going to be how to spend the bonus hours they used to spend at work," Farrell said. "To both husband and wife, I try to suggest that they not try to change each other's habits.

"For instance, if Joe likes to go bowling Wednesday nights, let him keep on. If Mary likes to play bridge Thursday afternoons, let her continue."

Farrell, who has talked to more than 500 retirees and has had only one turn down his invitation for a chat, stresses civic and church work for retirement days.

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD —(NEA)— Remember the early 30s when automobiles had rumble seats, dolls rolled their stockings and Los Angeles' Cocoanut Grove featured a young fellow who sang "When the Blue of the Night Meets the Gold of the Day" with a "boo-boo-boo?"

If you do, you will be reminded this month that it is later than you think.

The reminder, datelmed Chicago, will be about the debut (June 25, with a week earlier two-night break-in on the West Coast) of a new night club act—the four stalwart sons of Bing Crosby in songs, dances and funny sayings.

AND JUST TO MAKE the reminder even more forceful for you, Gary, 25; twins Dennis and Philip, 24, and Lindsay, 21, will come out with a rock 'n' roll modern version of their Dad's famous theme song.

The Chicago debut of the four Crosbys will be followed by a tour of the country. It isn't because they need the money. They have trust funds of $200,000 each. It is because, they say, they are on the spot.

All their lives have been spent in the shadow of Bing's fame—sheltered as kiddies and in the headlines as young adults. Now, references to them as "Bing's boys" and "The Sons of Lucky" have made it difficult for them, they say, to be known as individuals.

They also have inherited an honest love for show business from Bing and their actress mother, Dixie Lee, who died in 1952.

"They have been hams all their lives," Bing once told me.

THE CROSBY LADS also are very much aware of some unhappy headlines— drunk driving arrests, fights, paternity suits and say living in Los Angeles they would like to erase from the Crosby record books. Now settling down, they look back upon their becoming adult wildness with mixed emotions.

Bing's recent comment, "I may have been remiss in guiding them," has troubled the lads despite the words of Gary, the eldest, the leader and the most extroverted, "All kids of our age have growing-up problems. But because our name happened to be Crosby, everything we did landed on the front page."

Las Vegas would have paid more, much more, for the debut of the Crosby act. But for the moment, at least, the lads are smart enough to know their names have been linked a little too often with the Nevada Girlsville.

They also know their act better be good or else. . .

They have been rehearsing for months — writers, wardrobe and song arrangements add up to about $25,000. Just the other day, Bing's long time No. 1 radio and TV writer pal, Bill Morrow, was called in by the boys. They wanted a final, high gloss polish on the act. Bing told Bill: "Make 'em good."

AS LEADER of the four Crosbys, Gary is the sharpest — a hep-talking, party-loving cut-up who sometimes makes Bing wince with displeasure.

Then Bing probably remembers his own youth, puffs on his pipe and mutters, "He'll change, he'll change."

Philip and Dennis are married. Gary and Lindsay date the Hollywood field. All the boys have movie aspirations — they would enjoy careers just like dear old Dad's.

Gary has a 20th Century-Fox studio contract and has appeared in three movies since his army service. Lindsay has a promise of a role in the film, "Hound Dog Man."

A film with the four Crosbys, plus Old Dad, is another possibility.

Success on the night club circuit could lead to such a movie.

Ship Christeners Take the Breaks of the Game—Laconic Frenchman Is a New Twist in Washington

BY JERRY BENNETT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON— (NEA) — Prominent Washington wives agree that education's most pressing need is a special course to teach them how to break champagne bottles at christening ceremonies. The idea started following Mrs. Richard Nixon's seven swing attempt to smash a bottle of bubbly against a new commercial jet airliner.

It picked up emphasis a few days later when Mrs. Robert Anderson, wife of the Treasury secretary, clobbered the missile submarine George Washington so hard that she splattered everybody on the launching platform. She and Frank Pace, boss of General Dynamics Corp. which manufactured the sub, were drenched.

To make matters worse, her wrist watch came off and fell the equivalent of three stories onto th econcrete below. General Dynamics plans to buy her a new one.

ETIENNE HIRSCH, French president of the European Atomic Energy Commission, won the applause of Washington newsmen when he showed that he had no use for ghost writers. Appearing before the National Press Club, president Hirsch said in perfect English that he knew a statement attributed to him had been passed around. "I have read it," he said simply. "It's quite good. But why should I recite it now?"

So he made a few off-the-cuff remarks and sat down.

WASHINGTON'S staunchest advocates of paper plates are members of the Sheraton-Park Hotel's kitchen crew who washed and dried the dishes at a $100-a-plate Republican dinner. The wingding, which 3,200 people attended, turned out to be the biggest dinner in the hotel's history.

Guests dirtied 28,800 pieces of china, 6,400 glasses and 19,600 knives, forks and spoons.

The party probably set a record as a money-making enterprise. Although the GOP National Committee charged each guest $100 to attend, the dinner cost only $6.90 per plate. Thus the GOP raked in almost $300,000 in campaign funds.

FAVORITE DISH of Chevy Chase back yard cooking enthusiasts is a Malayan recipe called Panggang Perchik. It's charcoal broiled steak marinated with a concoction of coconut milk, onions, ginger root, green chili peppers and brown sugar.

Upon arriving at an outdoor party where Panggang Perchik was being prepared, Pentagon Navy Captain Sidney Freedman commented:

"This neighborhood smells just like the streets of Singapore."

PRETTIEST, MOST enthusiastic huckster to visit Washington this year is Irene Wasserkort of Frankfurt, Germany, who is Miss Hot Dog of 1959. For three days she toured the capital promoting hot dogs at press conferences, embassy receptions and hotel dining rooms. She also found a way to hawk the dish in almost every statement she made.

For instance, when a reporter asked why she had never learned to ski in Germany, Irene quoted a line from "The Hot Dog Polka." "It may be true as the song says that 'There ain't no bones in a hot dog,'" she explained. "But there are bones in me and every time I tried to ski, I broke one of them.

This sort of dedication vanished, however, at the end of the campaign. When asked what she wanted for lunch on her last day in town, she answered, "Make it a hamburger."

WASHINGTON socialite Mrs. Robert Low Bacon may start another trend in women's summer fashion accessories. She showed up at a British Embassy reception the other afternoon carrying a small portable electric fan. "It's wonderful for this," she said, holding the fan behind her neck.

TURKISH PRESS Attache Altemur Kilic has devised a new cocktail which he says surpasses a Bloody Mary as a daytime drink. A Bloody Mary is a combination of vodka and tomato juice. Kilic's concoction is a mixture of vodka and milk. He calls it a Pale Jane.

Griggsville — The Pike theater and all equipment was totally destroyed by fire between 12:30 and 1:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon while two fire departments battled vainly in an attempt to check the blaze. The loss is estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

Animals native to the Hawaiian Islands are rare. Only one, a small bat, is definitely known to be native. The ancient Hawaiians introduced dogs, hogs and perhaps rats and mice. Sheep, goats, cattle, horses and other animals were brought in after the islands were discovered by Europeans. There are hundreds of bird species, some of which are found only on the islands.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

Bible Anonymous

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The great, outstanding ones of the Bible are undoubtedly the named ones, whose names from the Bible have been the household names in successive generations—all the many of the Old and the New Testaments.

But here and there in the Bible are the unnamed ones, the "certain men" and "certain women." Despite their namelessness, they had a very important part in character and action and a notable part in determining the course of events.

To me there has always been a sort of fascinated interest in the "certain man" (I Kings 22:34) who "drew a bow at a venture."

It was that arrow, shot at a venture, which fatally wounded Ahab, King of Israel. This was the decided and turning point in the battle in which the evil Ahab, hurband of the evil Jezabel, had inveigled Jehosophat, a good man, King of Judah (see Chapters 17-20 in II Chronicles), into making war against Syria and apparently without any just cause.

As to the "certain man," I have a faint recollection of once having preached on the incident—a simple sermon in three parts:

1. He was on the right side.
2. He was facing the right way.
3. He did what he could, even if the mark wasn't clear. It is a suggestion of what anyone of us in the battle of life might anonymously accomplish if we fulfilled those three conditions.

If there were a "runner up" to the "certain man" who unknowingly killed King Ahab, I think it would be the "certain woman" (Judges 9:53) who caused the death of the rascally Abimelech, son of the famous Gideon. When he took a place called Thebex the inhabitants took refuge in a strong tower. When Abimelech came to the door to burn it the "certain woman" from the roof "cast an upped millstone" upon his head and broke his skull.

The disgrace of being killed by a woman would have been too much. He had his armor-bearer draw his sword and finish him off.

The physical and warlike actions of the "weaker sex" perhape have an unusual interest for me because of an apparently vigorous grandmother. Before my four grandparents left Ireland for Canada in the "Hungry Thirties" of the last century, they were involved in the feuds between Orange and Green. My Grandfather and Grandmother Gilroy were attacked by three thugs, but when my grandmother was terrified that they were going to be killed, one of them stepped forward and said, "This is a good man, who has never done us wrong."

It was different when my Grandgather and Grandmother Ellis were similarly attacked. As grandmother told the story: "Jack (my grandfather) knocked one down with his fist. I leveled another with a stone, and the third took to his heels."

Grandmother Gilroy had courage after the fact, but when she'd start to regale me with stories of the fights, my grandfather would get very angry, for a peaceful man. "Don't be putting such notions in the child's mind," he'd say. God bless him. I wish the religious world had more like him — men with strong convictions, but who have respect for the convictions of others.

Marinated Green Beans Are Delightful Salad or Snack

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

You'll enjoy these ways of serving garden vegetables in salads or as appetizers:

Pickled Green Beans Espagnole

Whole green beans which have been marinated in a piquant sauce of olive oil and tarrangon vinegar are attractive for a salad or an hors d'oeuvres offering. Cover cooked tender young whole green beans with the following mixture: ½ cup tarragon vinegar, 3 tablespoons Spanish olive oil, 1½ tablespoons sugar, 1½ tablespoons salt and ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper. To serve, drain beans, arrange bundles of the beans inside rings of thinly sliced sweet onion, then place bundles on crisp salad greens, allowing 1 bundle of beans for each serving. (Canned green beans can be used.)

Marinated Cucumber Cubes

Cut peeled cucumbers in small chunks, marinate in olive oil and salt for at least half an hour, then roll in finely minced parsley. Serve on toothpicks as an hors d'oeuvres.

Pimentos Emillio

The Spanish frequently serve green or red peppers dressed simply with olive oil and salt. Place seeded raw peppers on a shallow pan, cover with olive oil and bake in moderate oven until tender, sprinkling with salt before serving.

MONDAY'S DINNER: Meat loaf, mushroom gravy, frozen french fries, corn on cob, butter or margarine, enriched bread, pickled green beans Espagnole, blueberries, cream, coffee, tea, milk.

One thing people learn in the school of experience is that they're not in a class by themselves.

EGGS HEAD LIST OF GOOD FOOD BUYS TODAY

While all foods are good buys in terms of the time it takes the average working man to earn the money to pay for them, eggs rank as a particularly "good buy" today.

"New methods of processing, distributing, and retailing have contributed to the efficiency in providing food for consumers in the United States," Eugene V. Stadel, associate secretary of marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association, pointed out.

"Increased efficiency in production and better distribution of food have also helped make all foods a 'good buy,'" Stadel continued. "For example, one farmer today produces the food for 24 people. Ten years ago one farmer produced the food for only 15 persons."

Eggs are an increased production per hen. "One hour's work today for the average working man will buy five dozen high quality eggs," Stadel emphasized. "In 1952 one hour's work bought just half this many eggs."

Illustrating how all foods rank as a good buy, Stadel said the average worker can purchase food for a family of four for one month with 2½ days less working time than 10 years ago.

RECEIVES 1959 ILLINOIS STAR FARMER AWARD

STAR FARMER CONGRATULATED — Jerry Lee Hoffman, right, receives congratulations for his achievements as a young farmer from C. D. Smith, assistant dean of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture; H. R. Damisch, chief of agricultural education in Illinois; and C. J. Kuster, his vocational agriculture teacher at Normal High School.

PROUD OF HIS 26 HEREFORDS is Jerry Lee Hoffman, 17, 1959 Illinois Star Farmer, who talks over future operations with his dad, Charles Hoffman of Carlock, Illinois. Jerry won this year's FFA Foundation Award in beef cattle production. He says he started the herd seven years ago with the purchase of a registered heifer. He earned the money by driving a hay baler during the summer.

SPRINGFIELD — Jerry Lee Hoffman, a 17-year-old McLean County farm youth, modestly accepted the Illinois Star Farmer award from Stillman J. Stanard, director of Illinois Department of Agriculture, during the closing session of the 31st annual State FFA Convention at the State Fairgrounds Thursday.

Highest Honor

The Illinois Star Farmer Award is the highest honor that can be presented by the 16,535 Illinois farm youths who are members of the Future Farmers of America, the official organization of high school boys enrolled in vocational agriculture.

With Jerry were his proud parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman of Carlock and C. J. Kuster, his vocational agriculture instructor from Normal Community High School.

Wednesday night Jerry was presented the Illinois FFA Foundation Award for his outstanding beef production project. He was also in the finals for the public speaking contest.

Son of an Illinois tenant farmer, Jerry did not have unlimited capital for his farming operations. However, he had plenty of ambition and the cooperation of his parents.

After four years of FFA and five years of 4-H Club work, Jerry's net worth is over $10,000. The money will be used to finance studies at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, where he will enter as a freshman this fall in the pre-veterinary medicine curriculum.

Proud Possession

The 26 head of Herefords, 14 of which are registered, are one of Jerry's proudest possessions. Last year this herd produced 6,265 pounds of beef. He also has a flock of registered Hampshire sheep and manages a flock of 138 Leghorn layers.

For the past four years Jerry has rented 100 acres from a neighbor on a 50-50 crop-share lease. To farm the ground he rents the equipment on a custom basis from his father according to rates suggested by the University of Illinois.

Conservation Practice

Jerry believes farming is a big responsibility. With the coperation of his landlord, he has established grassed waterways on the 100 acres. All of the crops are planted on the contour to minimize erosion.

In recent years Jerry has managed the selling of livestock and grain from his operations, as well as his Dad's.

In learning to become a good farmer-citizen, Jerry has served as president and vice-president of the Carlock Mennonite Youth group and sung in the church choir. He was treasurer of his junior and senior high school class and member of the National Honor Society for four years.

Jerry has served as his FFA chapter's president, reporter and secretary. He has participated in public speaking contests and the state livestock judging contest and has received several FFA awards, including the State Farmer degree.

IAA Directors Okay Plans For Building In Bloomington

CHICAGO (AP) — Directors of the Illinois Agricultural Assn. Friday approved architects' plans for four-story headquarters building in Bloomington, Ill.

William J. Kuhfuss, IAA president, announced approval of the general concept of the building, a model of which was displayed by the architects, Graham, Anderson, Probst and White of Chicago.

The building will be erected on a sloping 5-acre site on the northwest side of Bloomington. The IAA and most of its affiliate organizations will move to Bloomington.

The IAA, which occupies a building in downtown Chicago, began plans to move its headquarters in March, 1958, when convention delegates voted to erect a new building and move headquarters downstate.

The IAA announced last October Bloomington would be the site of the headquarters. The city was chosen after a survey of more than 50 proposed sites.

No date for start of construction was announced. There was no estimate of total cost of the building. Previous unofficial estimates placed the cost at about 5 million dollars.

"Details of construction still must be worked out before working drawings can be prepared," Kuhfuss said. "Generally, though we believe the new IAA building will look like the model."

The architects' model showed a building with a cantilevered third floor which extends out over the first and second stories. The entire building will be built around a central courtyard.

Besides the IAA, the Bloomington building will house offices of the Illinois Farm Supply Co., Country Mutual Insurance Co., Illinois Livestock Marketing Assn., Illinois Farm Bureau Serum Assn., Illinois Agricultural Auditing Assn., Illinois Agricultural Holding Co., and the Illinois Agricultural Service Co.

The structure will be built on a slope so that the main entrance will be on the southeast side of the second floor, which will house a research library and general office space.

The first floor, with an entrance on the northwest side, will contain a cafeteria for the 1,200 employes, plus other service facilities.

The first and second floors will be 320 feet square.

The third floor is 360 feet square. Windows on the third cantilevered floor will be protected from the sun by vertical louvres extending from floor to ceiling. This floor will be devoted entirely to offices.

The fourth floor, set back and smaller than the other floors, will house offices of executives of the IAA and its affiliates.

The main building will be built around a central courtyard 120 feet by 160 feet.

An unusual feature will be the housing of all heating and air conditioning equipment in a round building connected to the main structure by a covered walkway.

The air-conditioned building will be constructed of steel, concrete, masonry and glass.

Space Guard Serial—

DESTINATION EARTH

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Synopsis: Space Guard Ensigns, Ed Speedwell and Jerry Symonds, are passengers on a Space Lift rocket taking off from Venus when a fire starts in the first stage engine. After the fire the rocket starts collapsing.

The pilot saves the fourth stage and passengers by putting them into an orbit 200 miles above Venus. Ed and Jerry take the passengers to their space ships. When they return to the Hercules they find that one of the crew members has left his space bag.

They put on space suits to return the bag. As they near the air lock of the Marconi part of the ship's hull bursts catapulting the occupant of that cabin into space.

Ed and Jerry save the man's life by rushing him back aboard the Marconi. Then the Marconi's Captain directs them to take the patient back to the Hercules in the Marconi's Space boat, Marconi I. As they near the Hercules they hear a damage report on the Marconi.

Chapter 5: Return to Earth

"The blowout of compartment 115 of the UNSS Marconi was due to the impact of a ten-inch meteor on the outer hull," the report came over the Marconi's radio, "there is no danger of further blowouts aboard the Marconi."

"I'm glad to hear that," said Jerry. "I was afraid the Marconi would have to be abandoned and the train would have no interplanetary radio link until the emergency station was set up."

The Interplanetary radio for the space ship train. Ed and Jerry were in, like all space ship trains, was in a separate ship because the equipment for it was too much for all the space ships to have their own. Each ship, however, carried part of the emergency station, just in case something happened to the radio ship.

"So am I," answered Ed, "now we can get busy studying for the Lieutenant's exam we're to take when we reach earth."

"I suppose we must," groaned Jerry, "I don't want to be an Ensign all my life."

"Well we'll have plenty of time to study for the exam as soon as we make another trip to the Marconi," said Ed, "because there's usually no more than one serious breakdown every launch.

"But, why do we have to make another trip to the Marconi?" Jerry began then after a pause continued, "Oh yes, of course, I almost forgot, the man we rescued is the one we were returning the space bag to, and now he will need it on the Hercules."

While the men were talking the Marconi I was hauled into one of the Hercules' space locks, when the lock reached full pressure, Ed and Jerry carried George Caldwell out of the space boat to nurses who were waiting to take the injured man to the Hercules' hospital section.

After Dr. White finished instructing the hospital staff on Caldwell's condition and the care he needed, Ed and Jerry took him back to the Marconi aboard the Marconi I. There the two space guardsmen climbed into their spacesuits and rocketed back to the Hercules with Caldwell's bag.

Smooth Flying

As Ed had predicted there were no more serious breakdowns during the rest of the flight back to earth, so he and Jerry had plenty of time to study for the Lieutenant's exam.

Dr. White visited Caldwell to check on his progress. By the time the space ship train was ready to land in Space Station 2's orbit, George Caldwell had recovered enough to be released from the hospital, but Dr. White had to tell him that he must choose between spending the rest of his life either in space or on Earth or the Moon, because his heart had been damaged by his exposure to space that couldn't stand the acceleration of a chemically-fueled rocket taking off from the earth.

Hard Choice

Ed and Jerry were waiting to take a space boat over to Space Station 2, just after the Hercules had finished its gradual deceleration to that orbit, when Caldwell walked into the waiting room. He went over to one of the port holes and looked out at earth than at the moon and finally at Space Station 2. Then after a long pause he turned to Lt. Cleveland and said "I hope there's room on that space boat for another passenger. I want to get to Space Station 2 in time to beat the rush for rooms."

When the space boat docked in Space station 2 George Caldwell was met by a group of photographers and reporters. As Ed and Jerry edged past them they heard one of the reporters ask, "What made you decide to spend the rest of your life in space, Mr. Caldwell?"

"Well actually, I don't plan to spend my whole life in space," answered Caldwell, "I intend to start work on a space drive that will be able to take off from a planet without much acceleration."

As George Caldwell finished this statement flash bilbs popped, and Ed and Jerry were almost knocked down by the reporters scrambling for the nearest visiphones.

Let's Go Birding

COMMON NIGHTHAWK

By EMMA MAE LEONHARD

One day late in May we had a call from Mrs. Paul Davidsmeyer on Sandusky. "Come and see the large bird with white in its wings. It's in the back yard."

As we guessed, it was a Nighthawk. Yes, the Nighthawk is a common bird that performs for us at all season in our area except in winter, and is called the Common Nighthawk.

We also heard several remarks from others about this bird during the last spring. In general, they were to the effect that the bird was acting strangely for a Nighthawk. It was flying close over the fields instead of in the sky, where we usually associate it; or it was flattened out on the lower branches of trees. On the Springfield May bird census, we saw at least three Nighthawks in the same section of a large oak, two on the same branch.

Now don't misunderstand us; Nighthawks do fly low at times. But why were they so generally hugging the ground while feeding, and not flying erratically high above us as is their habit? Their favorite insects undoubtedly were flying low too, for the birds feed on the wing.

We also commonly see the Nighthawk in the skies in the early morning and evening for their activities are mainly in the twilight hours. However, last spring we could observe their activities any time during the day. Perhaps you did too.

Summers In City

Those who had observed this common low flight probably saw the bird in the country side. During the summer the Nighthawk seems to become almost metropolitan. Then it hunts for insects in the sky as it flies between and above tall buildings as easily at it flies above the gardens and fields.

Above the lowliest tenement districts it performs as willingly and as spectacularly as it does over the fashionable areas; above the smoky industrial areas it darts and swoops as freely and contentedly as over the clean open country. In the storm clouds it exults as much as in a clear sky. It is not hard to please.

Furthermore, the Nighthawk is very easy to discover and identify. Of course the broad white patch across the wings is the Nighthawk's characteristic mark.

Down from the sky, wherever we may be, may come frequent repetitions of a short, nasal, and very unmusical call. "Peenk" or "peeyah" it seems to say. Look up into the direction whence comes this unmusical call; you will see this gray gird with prominent white patches on its wings, the interesting Common Nighthawk that is consuming many insects and mosquitoes for us.

JULIE

Poor little Julie had an ache in her head.
Her mother had told her to go to bed.
Poor little Julie was hot indeed.
She knew she should rest,
That she did need.
But she was so hot she forgot all about
What she would do when mother went out.
She had a puppy,
Happy and gay.
It was very funny that I should say,
It had a long nose
'Twas sweet as a rose,
I do hope she's happy
That I hope so.
But I know she's well
That I do know.

Brave Little Rebel

By Loella Sloane Young

Chapter 12: Scout's Story

"I was sent out from Fort Laramie yesterday, by Col. Cain to meet your wagon train and escort you back to the fort. You are Noah Culp, aren't you?" he questioned the wagonmaster.

"Yes," Noah replied. "I'm your man, but go on. What about those Indians you claim you saw?" he questioned. Looking up, he saw his old friend John Boley approaching.

"Come here, John," he called. "I want you to hear what this man has to say."

John Boley was a close friend of Noah Culp, and the assistant wagontrain master. He was a large man, who walked with the grace of a panther. He was a kind man, but he had a deadly eye with his trusty rifle, and his reputation with a six gun had already preceded him into this Western land. He had heard the rider's shouts and come to investigate the trouble.

"What's your name," Boley asked the man, who had begun to regain his wind, and was nervously mopping the sweat from his brow.

Tells Of Indians

"Young, Carson Young," the man replied. "I act as guide and general handy man around the army post. Col. Cain sent me to meet this wagon train and bring it in safely," he explained to the two men.

"He would have come himself, but he was having some trouble out by Stottsville. Everything has been pretty peaceful around here for sometime.

"Then a few days ago, word came to the fort that a renegade band of the Snake tribe was cuttin' up a few capers. They burned a cabin about three miles from the fort and scalped the whole family. Since then they've burned crops and stolen horses. Just looks like they're trying to stir up trouble. They're a tricky lot too," he went on.

"They sneak up on the unsuspecting ones at night. Col. Cain felt sure with as large a group as you have here, that you'd not have any trouble from them, especially if you weren't caught unaware of the danger." Yes sir, surprise," he continued. "That's the way they do it."

Carson Young shook his head worriedly. "Didn't ever suspect I'd have to warn you this way."

Same Indians

"What makes you think this is the same band of Indians?" questioned Boley.

"I saw 'em," he drawled. "Saw 'em before they spotted me. I don't know that happened unless they were hiding down low there behind that rise 'till after dark. Or maybe it was just luck. But anyway, one of 'em was watering his horse on up beyond the bend of the creek there," he paused as he pointed toward a little grove of willows far upstream, which screened a curve in the creek.

"I saw him, all decked out in his war paint, he was. A young buck too. He must have been mighty careless, 'cause he didn't even have his rifle with him.

"He didn't expect to see me lying there in the willows restin'. When he looked up and saw me, he was as startled as a deer. He threw his leg over that pony's back and raced away toward the rock over there.

"I thought he was alone, and started to give chase, but he shouted aloud, and about 20 of his pals appeared around the corner of the rock. When I saw them and their war paint, I knew I'd better high-tail it out of there. So I jerked my horse around and fololwed the creek.

"I figured you all couldn't be too far away. We had word that you'd get in about tomorrow from that trader fellow who passed you last week."

A Redling

By Mabel Hall Goltra

There was a little Redling
That could not hop or fly;
Its wings were marked with lovely blue
How could we help it fly.

Beneath the soft gray feathers
Upon its tiny head
Were three or four bright crimson ones
Or should we say, "bright red."

It tried so very, very hard
To climb up in the tree
To see the birds and butterflies.
But that was not to be.

The Museum In Springfield

The museum was fun and I think the stuffed animals were the best. The deer were amazing, with the doe and the buck standing and watching their fawn.

The buffaloes looked as if they were real. They were jumping off a small cliff and were running in ruts.

The giraffe was tall. He was looking over all the other animals. They must have caught him in Africa. The bears looked playful. The little cub was staring at a butterfly.

The Indian relics were simple and powerful. The drum was powerful in the way of noise. If a group of Indians was out hunting and other Indians were in trouble all they would have to do was beat the drum and the other Indians would come.

The arrow was powerful in the way of speed and was dangerous. An Indian could shoot an arrow and kill some living thing instantly. The bow was powerful in the way of shooting an arrow. Yet it was a very simple weapon.

TROUBLE

By Jerry Lawless

Trouble can Change the feelings in man's
Minds of the things thought good
Before.

The man
Who thinks upon it too much
Is turned by its power
To grief.

It brings
To men and women both
A much shorter life before
Senility.

I say!
The trouble with trouble
Is that it causes too much Trouble.

Outdoor Fun For Everyone

By Joseph A. Smith

Obstacle Course

Would you like to challenge your neighborhood boys to some real feats of skill and endurance? Then there's nothing more fun or challenging to you than an obstacle course.

Get your buddies tozether and locate either a vacant lot or a suitable back yard. Now plan your course and its obstacles. Some things you might use in clude the following:

1. Hang a ladder parallel to the ground and seven feet above it. (It must be crossed hand over hand).
2. Two barrels placed end to end to be crawled through.
3. Drive in a vaulting pole which one must hop over.
4. A six foot (or so) length of two by four placed one foot above the ground with a box under each end (it must be walked over tight-rope style).
5. "Jump the Creek" by clearly marking off a four or five foot jump.
6. Lay out a straight line of six poles with each two feet apart (contestant must crawl in and out zig-zag fashion.
7. A seven foot wall if possible (to be scaled), and countless other things that you can no doubt think of. These will make up a tough small obstacle course!

Lay the obstacles out so that one leads to another. Choose a judge and keep a time record for every one of your friends; see who can run it the fastest, and submit any questions in the way any individual runs the course to the judge.

Punching Bag

Did you know, by the way, that you can make a punching bag out of an old flour sack, half filled with sand (or torn newspapers for a softer one) and placed inside a double sack of two burlap bags, one inside the other?

Borrow some old boxing gloves and swat away. Don't punch too hard until you learn how for a beginner can easily sprain his wrist with a hard punch.

For more such fine ideas see "American Boy's Omnibus" by Stanley Pashko, at the Public Library.

My Trip to Springfield

We went to Springfield the other day,
To work and work but not to play.
We went to Lincoln's Home and Tomb
And then we went to the clean rest room.

It was hot because of the sun,
And Tommy bought a water gun.
He and Red were going to have a fight,
And the rest of us had a sudden fright.

Donnie bought some explosive matches,
And in his jeans he soon had patches.
He lit one off in front of a crowd,
And it was very, very, loud.

We went to the Springfield museum,
There are statues of things and you should see 'um.
Then we went to the state capitol building
And the sighs were very, very thrilling.

We came back on the bus,
All twenty-one of us.
We had a hard test
And I scored second best.

Novice Ticket Steps

By Joseph A. Smith

BCI and TVI

Now that you as our prospective Novice are well along the road toward earning that coveted ticket, it would be wise to bring to your attention possible difficulties that you may run into while on the air.

While the A.R.R.L. Handbook's section on B.C.I. (broadcast band interference) and T.V.I. (television interference) is one of the best sources of information about these amateur difficulties, the following is a brief selection of hints and, we hope, helpful ideas. Incidently, almost any "Old-Timer" amateur will be glad to help you with your problems along this line; after all, he had them too!

Amateur transmitter interference that is picked up in the usual small A.C.-D.C. type radio (table model etc.) is to be expected. Only if it covers a wide portion of the radio dial is it a sign of a malfunctioning transmitter. (One or two subharmonics is often the normal thing and generally the fault of an inadequate shielded and very poorely selective receiver).

If trouble is more than normal into a good quality receiver then check the rig first. Is is loaded properly? Is the final not being overdriven by excessive grid drive? Is the final amplifier stable?

If all is OK thus far, you can add two helpful improvements: (1) Install the rig in a shielded and grounded case if it isn't already, and (2) Install a Line-Filter in the 117 volt line cord right at the rig; ground the filter case.

After these efforts, it's then up to the radio set owner to have a simple Resistor - Capacitor filter installed into his little receiver. Examples of these may be found in the A.R.R.L. Handbook.

TV Trouble

Still today the most persistant difficulty for some amateurs is Television Interference. With today's improved T.V. receivers along with their shifted Intermediate Frequency, and better transmitter design, this is less of a problem today; still the newcomer must be aware of it. With proper steps and precautions this harmonic caused interference can largely be elliminated from both the transmitter and a T.V. set of Good Quality!

For the amateur Novice these precautions may include:

(1) Enclose the transmitter in a grounded metal case, and cover any openings with fine mesh screen wire that is carefully grounded. Be sure a lid that opens makes metal to metal contact when it is closed.

(2) The circuit used should include the proper T.V.I. filtering and bypassing precautions. (See A.R.R.L. Handbook.)

(3) In tough cases a simple LOW-PASS filter may have to be used between the output of the rig and the tuner or untuned feeders. A good though inexpensive example of one such filter may be seen in the excellent article "Solving Your AVI Problem" appearing in the February 1959 issue of "QST" radio amateur magazine (p.p. 19-21. Incidentally this is excellent reading for the newcomer or any Novice!

Important Point

Be sure the rig is properly loaded to a properly matched antenna load. This is most important!

Be sure the final amplifier is stable—free of parasetics and any tendency to self-oscillate. (Neutralize of necessary.)

If your rig is clean, then the T.V. set owner should be advised (politely) to have an inexpensive hi-pass filter installed at the antenna terminals of his T.V. set.

Well, here's hoping that this series of articles has encouraged some prospective Novice to work for and get his ticket. Here's also hoping we will neet you on the air quite soon.

Little Snow Chief

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 3 New Home

It was not easy for me to get settled in my new home, but the first night ended better than it started.

Mistress warmed me some diluted milk, and I was so hungry I wasn't long in finding out how to lap it! Said I to myself, "That's what my little red tongue is for!" But the milk tasted weak and she didn't give me much.

Then she put me into a box lined with a warm blanket and said kindly, "Go to sleep now, little Snow Chief!" I found that was to be my name, and it was something new to me for I hadn't had any name at all before.

All Alone

Then she wound an alarm clock, saying she would feed me again in a few hours. Of course, I didn't understand every thing she was saying, but we dogs soon learn what things mean, even if we do have a language all our own. After she was sure I was well tucked in, she left the door ajar, turned out the light . . . and I was alone!

I was grateful for her kindness so I curled up and tried hard to be satisfield; but I was still hungry and oh, so lonesome. I just couldn't go to sleep, so I began to cry and this brought my Mistress right back to my side!

She heated my milk and fed me again, and then tucked my blanket around me once more; but I had learned a typical baby trick:

Every time I whined, here Mistress came again . . . so I kept it up partly from fear, partly from loneliness, and partly because I just wanted attention. Anyway, it worked, and finally I won out.

Mistress moved my box into her own room and when I cried, she said something to comfort me and I soon went to sleep. Needless to say she fed me often that first night, but after that, I was only fed once around midnight and I did my other eating in the daytime.

I'm sure Mistress didn't know it, but I never did have enough and I was always hungry until finally, I had a chance to explain things in my own way:

Head Westward

At the end of the next week, my Master and Mistress decided to go west. It seemed many people had a yearning to do so in those days and young men often went west during the wheat harvest along the golden belt way that led through Kansas and other states.

They disposed of their household goods, and then with only their personal belongings and, of course, me, they headed west.

As we rode along, I either lay in my Mistress' lap, or curled up between her and Master in the front seat of the car.

Mister was very kind to me, but I confess, I was more fond of my Mistress for she always seemed to understand me and my baby needs.

Mrs. Marion Lamoine Reinhardt

Gladys Norris, Marion Reinhardt Wed At Methodist Church In New Salem, Ill.

PITTSFIELD—Miss Gladys Ann Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Norris and Marion Lamoine Reinhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynden Reinhardt, exchanged wedding vows Sunday afternoon, June fourteenth, in the New Salem Methodist church with Rev. E. L. Fahenstock officiating.

Mrs. Dawson Dean of Griggsville played the nuptial prelude with Miss Janet Mosbacher of Springfield as soloist.

Baskets of white glads, palms and seven branch candelabra graced the altar. Blue carnations with white satin bows marked the pews for the family.

Mrs. Richard Reinhardt of Pittsfield, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Another sister, Miss Sue Norris, and Mrs. Allan Johnson were bridesmaids. Carol Sutton was the flower girl.

Richard Reinhardt served his brother as best man. Ushers were Dawson Dean of Griggsville and Dale Moore of Baylis.

Candles were lighted by cousins of the bridegroom, Larry Joe Dunham and Edwin Gene Reinhardt of Pittsfield, Tommy Neese was the ring bearer.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original floor-length gown of white organza over bridal taffeta. The bodice was styled with a square neckline edged with Venetian lace which also formed the short sleeves and outlined the empire waistline. The bouffant skirt, worn over hoops, featured diagonal rows of Venetian lace and formed a sweep train in the back. Matching organza mitts completed the bride's costume. A small crown interwoven with seed pearls held the chapel-length veil of imported French illusion edged with lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of calla lilies with dieffenbachia leaves. Her strand of pearls and earrings were gifts of the groom.

The attendants wore identically styled waltz-length dresses of powder blue nylon organza over matching taffeta with matching hats with tulle nose veils, blue gloves and slippers. They carried crescents of majestic daisies.

Reception

A reception was held in the Masonic Hall following the ceremony. Mrs. Norman Bryant of Springfield, Miss Linda Claus of Pittsfield, Miss Julia Mason of Fairfield and Miss Nancy Weaver of Pana were in charge of the serving.

Mrs. Reinhardt graduated from Pittsfield Community high school in 1956 and will graduate in August from Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in Springfield.

The bridegroom also graduated from Pittsfield high school in 1952 and served four years in the Navy. For the past two years he has been a student at the University of Illinois School of Engineering and will continue his studies this fall.

After their wedding trip the newlyweds will be at home at 105½ North State street in Springfield.

On Saturday evening a rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at their home.

Charles Crandall and Laura Richards were married June 28, 1909 in this city. They are the parents of one son, William H. Crandall of St. Louis, Mo. They have one grandson, William H. Crandall, Jr., who attends Washington University.

Both are retired, Mr. Crandall for many years as a salesman, and Mrs. Crandall from a teaching career at Illinois School for Deaf.

50 Year Memento

A cherished memento of their wedding is the Tuesday Courier of June 29, 1909 in which there is an account of their wedding in the "Matrimonial" column.

The story describes in detail the floral decorations at the home of the bride's parents in this city, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Richards, where the ceremony was performed in the early evening by the Rev. H. H. Mitchell, rector of Trinity Episcopal church.

Additional information included listing of the bridegroom's father as J. H. Crandall and the fact that the groom was junior partner with his father in the firm of McGill and Crandall, wholesale confectioners in Springfield.

The bride was referred to as 'a very efficient instructor at the School for the Deaf and a graduate of Jacksonville High School, class of 1899 and holding a diploma from the Woman's College, class of 1901.'

The occasion in 1909 also marked the 44th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

After spending the night in this city the newlyweds left early the next morning on the Wabash for Springfield.

Fashions Planned For Summer Travel

They're Shown In Wrinkle-Free Fabrics

The summer travel wardrobe for Charlene Hargrove, Queen of the 1959 New York Summer Festival, is one that stresses fabrics that won't wrinkle but will launder easily. She wears (left) a sleeveless dress and jacket in a fine, flat knit orlon. This is the perfect ensemble for summer plane or train travel. Sleeveless jacket dress is in white crepe (center) woven of acetate and nylon. The pleats will keep their sharp, neat look indefinitely. Jacket is blue, bordered in red and accented with gold buttons. Filmy chiffon dancing dress (right) looks fragile but is strong. It's woven of nylon and silk. It's cut with bouffant skirt and pleated, cascading sleeves. These clothes are hardy travelers, planned to pack well and emerge from a suitcase looking fresh and spruce.

BY GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Despite the prevalence of air conditioning, summer travel does present problems.

You can start out for an airport looking fresh and neat and arrive rumpled and wrinkled. Or, you can leave the air conditioned plane at your destination and arrive at your hotel looking completely wilted.

What's the answer? First, to pick fabrics that will stand up to summer heat rather than collapsing. An orlon knit is ideal for summer travel, particularly in a jacket dress. It won't muss, won't wrinkle but will keep you cool. Chiffon woven of nylon-and-silk is another sound investment. When you reach your destination and are ready to go partying, it will emerge from the suitcase without looking as if it had been pressed with a bedspring.

Another happy fabric combination is dacron-and-cotton. This one will hold up even if you get caught in a brief but drenching summer shower.

A second answer to looking neat in summer is to remember that, even yet, not all air conditioning is regulated so that you can go without a wrap. Plan your travel wardrobe around jacket dresses, dresses with matching stoles, dress-and-sweater combinations. But be sure they are coordinated. Nothing looks messier than a summer dress, however pretty, covered by any kind of sweater which has been added just as protection from drafts.

Johnson Says 'No' To Nomination Talk, But His Texas Boot Keeps The Door Open

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas is the most powerful man you'll find who says he neither wants to be President nor to have a hand in making one.

This is the Senate's acknowledged Big Operator, the master of the whispered conference, widely hailed for his persuasive talents and his maneuvering skill as his party's chief legislative strategist.

He's made himself into the image of the practical man who gets things done, the reasonable fellow who finds the winning course of compromise while others carry flapping brief cases filled with plans that will never get off paper.

If this is the middle of the road, Johnson makes it the busiest part of the street in Washington, and he loves every conspiratorial detail of it.

• • •

Yet plenty of people ignore his denials that he'd like the bigger power and excitement of the White House. National opinion polls now plant him third among Democratic eligibles for 1960. A host of prominent Southerners, and some others, tout him for the Presidency.

Texas has re-jiggered its primary law to favor his candidacy. Some say he could walk into next year's Los Angeles convention with 300 delegates, no small package to juggle.

Johnson has his fingers in every pie that's baked, including outer space. Said a GOP colleague: "Lyndon's the first man to turn outer space into a congressional district."

He doesn't take many dates about the country, but he's had pre-presidential exposure in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and a few other spots. He's scrapped a matter-of-fact speaking style for a new one with dramatic range from whispers to thunder.

• • •

Nevertheless, many seasoned observers insist that in the convention clinches the Democrats will never take a man from Texas. They say that knowing that this somberly handsome man of 50, who looks like the well-to-do rancher he is, probably is more Western than Southern.

JOHNSON IN ACTION: a deceptively casual dynamo.

Some think Johnson himself believes this and so means it when he says he won't try for the nomination. He abhors failure and wastes no time on lost causes.

Others think he's held back by the memory of the massive 1955 heart attack that nearly killed him. Today he's fully recovered and a good insurance risk. But what happened may give him pause.

It doesn't give him pause around the Senate. He drives down that field like every day was the big game.

You'll seldom see a more deceptive casual dynamo. He lounges in his office chair, feet up, as if he were unfurled in the Texas sun, drawing his earthy, salty, sharp comments on men and events.

• • •

In fact he's whirring all the time. Little pink slips bearing messages cascade onto his desk. Secretaries scurry about. His four telephones jangle steadily.

He picks up one to listen to a senator who wants to write him a well publicized letter, announcing group support for a bill. Johnson demurs. He figures if these men bunch up it will only stir counter force. He replies:

"First thing you know we'll have a lot of blocs and no bills. That other fella can get more votes just by noddin' than you can with a detective."

Johnson's huge staff has to keep pace. He frowns on conversational huddles and other distractions. Said one of the devoted: "This is one of those easy government jobs you read about. I had a quick dinner last night and worked until 10. It was a light night."

That's how it is down at the ranch in the Texas hill country. Partly immersed in his heated swimming pool, Johnson can grab a handy telephone or bark over a loud speaker system. The flutter of message bearers and order carriers goes on.

• • •

All this began when, as a lad, he used to find his father shaking him awake at dawn and saying: "Lyndon, every boy in town's got an hour's start on you."

Bedeviled the whole way by the urge to succeed, he declined to settle for ranching. He got close to politics as a congressional secretary, then spent a decade or so in the House, and in 1948 made the Senate. "Landslide Lyndon" they called him, after he won by 87 votes.

In five years he rose to Democratic leader. And whatever happens on the Presidency, he may already have made the enduring mark he seeks. For many rate him the most successful practicing politician ever to enter the Senate.

So he should be President, say his friends and admirers. Johnson keeps saying "no." But the things he does—and others do—keep the door ajar. He may have to set aside a fragment of his crowded day for the regular denials due between now and July 11, 1960.

STILTED PERFORMANCE—Tractor on stilts moves across a gooseberry field in Kent, England. The stilts permit harrowing between rows of crops as high as 4½ feet. Called the Lenfield Flamingo, the tall tractor has alternate adjustments.

Name Bailey Commander Of Calhoun Post

HARDIN, Ill.—Kenneth Bailey was elected commander of Calhoun Post 636, American Legion, at the regular meeting of the group Monday night at the Legion building in Hardin. Named to serve with Bailey were Al Hillen, senior vice commander; Carl Simon, Jr., junior vice commander, and Arthur Kamp, finance officer. Ralps Leeds is retiring post commander. Installation of new officers will be an event of the July meeting.

Plans were made Monday night for the water show and fish fry which the post will sponsor on Sunday, July 5. The water show will be presented by the SkiPals of Alton, and will take place in the river at Legion Park.

Delegates named by the post to the department convention in July were Howard Devine and Leo Matthews. John Sibley and Carl Simon, Jr. were selected as alternates.

WHITE HALL — Thomas C. Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Rose of this city was among the 3,865 graduates on June 13, at the University of Michigan, receiving his Bachelor of Laws degree. He and his wife are visiting his parents.

Bible School Closes

A program marking the closing of the vacation Bible school at the Presbyterian church in Hardin was presented at the church Friday evening. The theme of the program was "The Bible." The Rev. Anton S. Fabian, pastor, was present to give the opening and closing prayers.

The kindergarten class opened the program with recitations and songs, and a vocal solo was presented by Rosemary Grosse. The children in the primary class also sang, and each recited a verse, with the entire class reciting the 23rd Psalm.

Johnnie Peterson served as master of ceremonies for the upper classes, whose part in the program included songs and a Bible quiz. Prayer was given by Janet Leeds. All classes had on display the craft and other work they had completed during the two-week session. Mrs. Richard Adair was superintendent of the school.

NEW HOME SERIES

NO. 7

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. (Bob) Jameson, their daughter Julie, and son John, reside in this attractive residence at No. 400 Westgate. The Jameson home can best be described as a spacious, livable family home that graciously welcomes guests, as well as family, and makes them feel comfortably at home.

Something different has been achieved by designing this house to conform to the terrain. On the lower level, there is a two-car garage with windows above, underscored by the charm of a flower planted balcony. An easy flight of stairs leads from the garage to a terrace on the upper level. The exterior is of Buff Roman Brick, accented by the use of shutters and Redwood for trim. Thermopane has been used for the glass areas throughout, and the house is fully air-conditioned for additional comfort.

The entrance terrace welcomes you outside and leads into a foyer where light is provided by sidelights set in on both sides of the door. As you enter, the floor is Ceramic tile, and a turn to the right brings you into a Pine-paneled den, straight ahead from the entry is the living room, particularly spacious, well lighted by a window area that is a natural focal point for furniture arrangement. To the left of the foyer, a stairway leads to a full basement, where there is space for a rumpus room, a work shop, an area for storage, the heating system, and an entrance to the garage. At the end of the foyer, there is an unusual coat closet featuring an opening on the foyer side for the convenience of guests, and an opening on the kitchen side for family use.

The corridor-type kitchen is an example of excellent planning, where convenience and efficiency is compactly arranged in a minimum of space by the use of a built-in oven and counter-top range along one wall, dual stainless-steel sinks at the end, and the dishwasher and refrigerator on the opposite wall. Plenty of counter space and storage space has been incorporated. The cabinets are responsible for setting the color scheme of turquoise, and the Vinyl floor was selected to complement the color plan. The kitchen also includes a pantry closet, a door opening to the outside, and a window that keeps the terrace and play-yard in full view.

A buffet-serving bar serves as a divider between the kitchen and the family room . . . perfect for informal meals, or a snack counter. The family room is the center of activity for all of the family, the floor of light and dark shades of Cork-Tone Vinyl-Asbestos tile, set in random design, harmonizes with the Pine-paneled walls, bookshelves supported by wall-brackets add a decorative note. Indirect lighting is used in the ceiling. Wide, floor-to-ceiling, glass doors slide open from the family room to the sheltered sun patio. This is an outstanding arrangement, inviting a pleasant combination of indoor-outdoor living with a garden view.

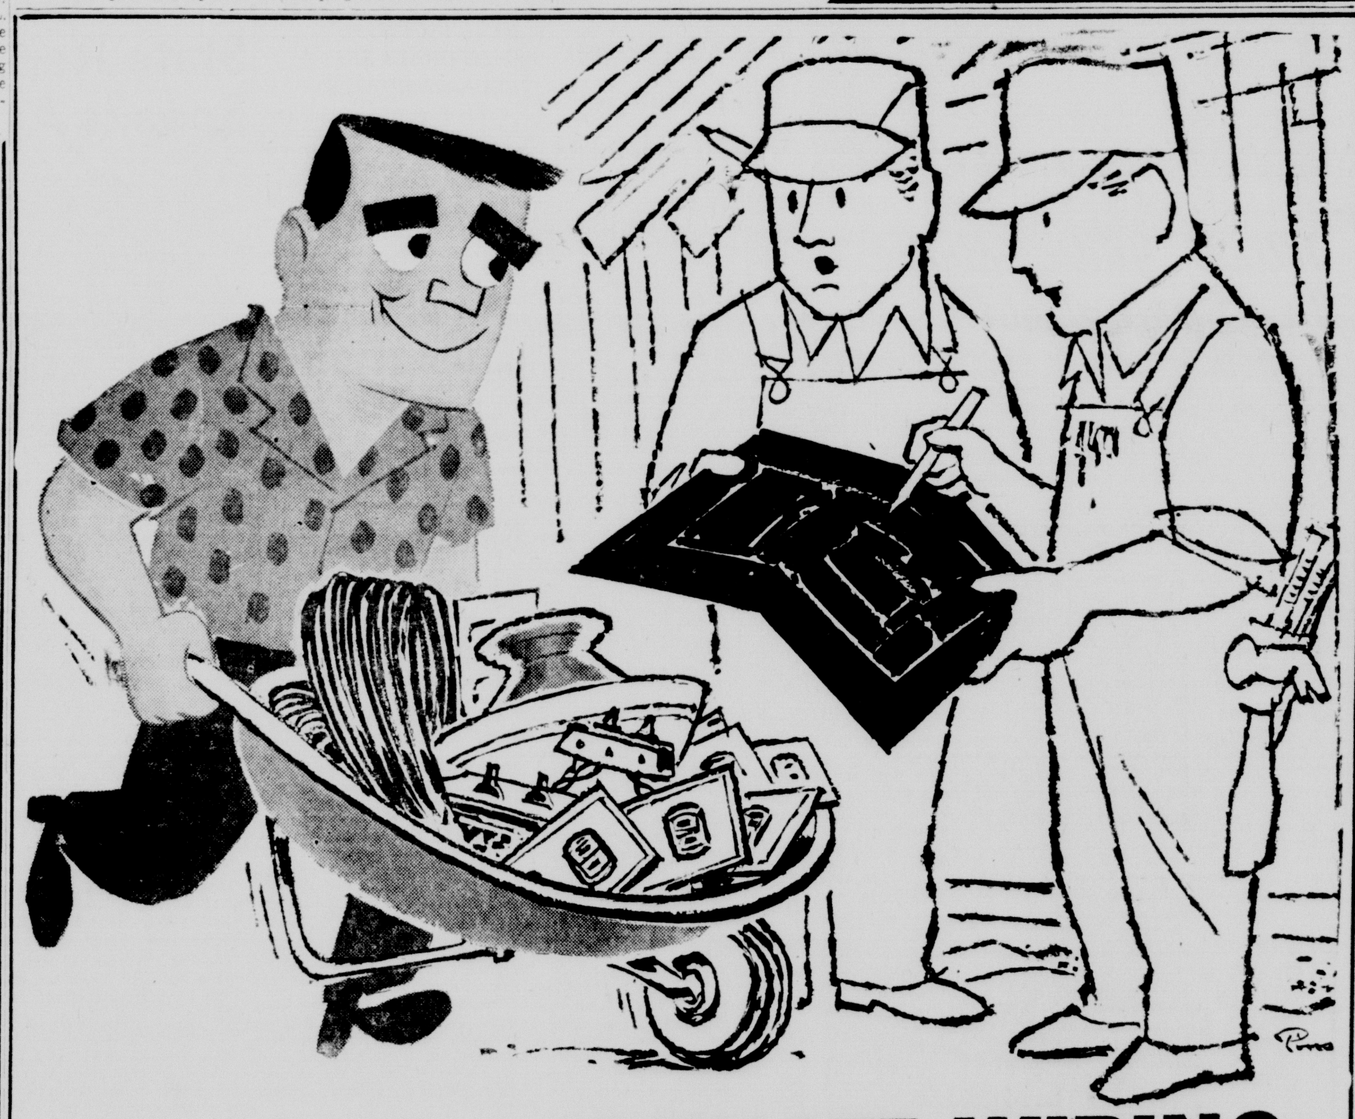

Going on through the family room, a wood-paneled hallway permits passage to the bedroom wing. Three bedrooms are designed with family convenience in mind, all have large window areas, abundant closet space, oak floors, and the Master bedroom has a private door to the family bath. The bathroom which features compartment planning, is actually two rooms, making it doubly useful at all times. The compartment accessible from the bedroom hall is equipped with a glass enclosed combination tub and shower. The inner room, off of the Master bedroom, has a vanitory-lavatory with built-in drawers and hampers below, and a ceiling-high mirror above. To the right of the lavatory, a built-in cabinet houses a medicine chest in the upper section, and a linen chest in the lower section. An especially convenient feature is a laundry area, adjacent to the family bath, concealed by a folding door. An attractively decorated vanity alcove, featuring a full width mirror above the built-in vanitory-lavatory, is conveniently situated near the main bathroom for the use of family and guests.

Family fun time, indoor activities, informal entertaining, formal entertaining, all have their place in the Jameson home, where there is space aplenty for everyone. This home offers warm hospitality, and a wealth of good living for the future.

MEDALLION HOME ELECTRICALLY

ILLINOIS POWER COMPANY

One way to judge a builder is by examining the electrical wiring he proposes to furnish in your new home. Before you buy, ask to see the electrical wiring plan. If it does not come up to adequate wiring standards, proceed with caution.

What to look for:

Are lighting switches conveniently placed?

Are there plenty of convenience outlets where you will want them, now or in the future?

Are there enough circuits . . . remembering that you'll be adding new electric appliances in years to come?

With less than these adequate wiring standards, your home would be outdated before it is finished.

A conscientious builder will be happy to discuss the wiring in your new home. It's a wise step to insure getting a home that will be modern, electrically, for many years to come.

Put The Queen In Civil Service

That's What Royalists Say Elizabeth's Critics Really Want

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

LONDON (NEA)—While Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip give North Americans a taste of royal glamour during their seven-week Canadian tour, the Socialists at home will be busy gnawing away at the foundations of the British monarchy.

It is an insidious campaign that goes on year in and year out. The Socialist aim: to pull the monarchy down from its pedestal, to make it drab as part of the inevitable leveling-off process of the Welfare State.

In Socialist eyes, and this includes the majority of the British Labor Party, the Queen is a glorified civil servant presiding over a middle-class nation.

As 78-year-old Lord Esher, a noted patron of the arts, recently remarked: "The Queen still has that quality which is anathema to the civil service view of life—glamour.

"There isn't much left of it in the modern world, but what there is is much prized."

The idea of a Civil Service Queen, however, appeals to the Puritan streak in many Britons, and may ultimately influence the image the Queen projects as head of the monarchy.

"The monarchy must always retain an element of mystery," according to Sir Frederick Ponsonby, one of the most experienced courtiers in modern times. "If you bring it down to the people, it will lose its mystery and influence."

Britons have only to look across the North Sea for warning examples of what happens when the royal coinage is debased, according to those who uphold the old tradition.

In the Netherlands, for example, the monarchy no longer has an aura of mystery or glamour, they point out. Queen Juliana is said to be under the influence of faith-healers and cranks.

In Belgium, 29-year-old King Baudouin has been criticized for everything from being extravagant to remaining single and thus failing to provide an heir to the throne.

In Britain, the attack upon royalty is seldom direct, the leftists and the Laborites preferring the oblique approach. The recent State visit of the Shah of Persia is a case in point.

In a leading article, the leftist New Statesman started by criticizing the preparations for the Shah's visit as "ostentatious vulgarity."

"The gold plate has been taken out of the safe, arthritic joints thrust into rusty knee-breeches," the magazine article sneered.

* * *

It went on to drag in the Queen. "Doubtless the Queen takes no pleasure in hobnobbing with this unsavoury potentate," New Statesman conceded, but it questioned her sincerity. "Today the tarnished phrases of welcome conceal only cynicism."

The danger, as observers here see it, lies in the Queen bending over backwards to please her critics. In this respect, she shows herself to be much more compliant than some of her predecessors.

Queen Victoria would have ignored with contempt many of the criticisms directed at her great-great-grand-daughter. But Elizabeth, with the advice of Prince Philip, already has gone a long way to meet the demands of her more vociferous critics. The reforms instituted in the seven years she has been on the throne are sweeping ones.

In keeping with the times, she enrolled her son, Prince Charles, in an ordinary prep school. The 10-year-old Prince of Wales is the first direct heir to the throne to receive such a democratic education.

Again, because they were unpopular with many of her subjects, the Queen abolished presentation parties at Buckingham Palace last year, thus putting an end to the so-called "debutante racket."

The Queen has steadily broadened her contacts with the outside world. Today's guest list for an informal luncheon would have sounded a few years ago like the wild dream of a social revolutionary.

Some recent Palace guests: Alec Guiness, actor; Chris Brasher, sprinter; Donald Campbell, holder of the world's speed record on water; Michael Balcon, film producer; and Billy Wright, captain of the All-England soccer team.

* * *

All of these reforms have met with popular enthusiasm. But some Socialist critics apparently would like to see Prince Charles attending a little red brick schoolhouse somewhere down by the gas works. They would also like to see a heavy sprinkling of shop stewards among the Queen's entourage.

As a hard-bitten royalist explained it to me, "Labor would like to see Buckingham Palace converted into a People's Park for Rest and Culture, where the Queen might be glimpsed occasionally riding a bicycle with her shopping basket over the handlebars."

OSTENTATIOUS VULGARITY?: The elegance and glamour of the monarchy displayed on such occasions as the recent state visit of the Shah of Iran are under constant attack by British leftist critics.

Vacuum's Attachments Speed Storage Of Clothes

BY KAY SHERWOOD,
NEA Staff Writer

Changeover time, when summer clothes come out of hibernation and winter clothes are put away, confronts the homemaker with the mighty task of cleaning closets and dresser drawers.

The job can be cut down to more manageable size with some planning and a determination to make full use of your household cleaning equipment.

Most notable of the latter, perhaps, is the vacuum cleaner and its attachments.

According to surveys, we just don't take advanage of all the jobs a cleaner can do for us besides take up dust from the carpet.

Be ready for a sunny, breezy day, when woolens can be properly aired while closets are cleaned. Have your supplies together.

Those should include sponges or cleaning cloths, mothproofers of the types you favor, bags or boxes into which stored garments will go and masking tape, if needed, to seal them shut. You might want to use an insecticide, too.

EMPTY EACH CLOSET completely. Sort through the winter clothes, putting those aside which need dry cleaning, and build a pile of those to be discarded.

Clothes that don't need dry cleaning, but which will need storage, should be brushed and aired. Turn up collars, turn out pockets, turn down cuffs.

You can remove surface soil with the upholstery brush of the vacuum. Use the same brush or the crevice attachment for cleaning cuffs and creases.

Garment bags should be emptied for cleaning before storage.

Here, again, use your vacuum cleaner's crevice attachment inside to remove dust and lint. Sponge-clean the outside of each bag.

To clean the closet, use cleaner's dusting brush on the shelf and baseboard, work down the walls with the wall brush; shift to the crevice tool for corners and the line where shelf joins wall. Finally, vacuum the floor. Then, with a damp sponge, clean the woodwork.

If the closet is old, with cracks along the floor, you may want to spray an insecticide into those potential trouble areas. With the variety of insecticides available today, a wise homemaker always buys—to make sure the product is safe to use indoors—and again before she sprays.

Woolens to be stored might have been mothproofed at the factory; if in doubt, spray them or use crystals or mothballs as best suit the purpose.

Clean, air and store winter shoes in boxes or bags in a dry place. Before storing, fit shoes with shoe trees, or stuff with paper.

Special storage boxes are a boon to overcrowded closets but be sure to place them where they will keep dry. Mustiness and mildew are hard to rout from leather or fabrics.

Vacuum-cleaning attachments speed the chore of closet cleaning that should precede storage of winter clothes. (Singer)

Opening lead—♣ 3

I will give the play in full before commenting since it is an example of flawless technique.

Morty won the opening club lead in his hand and played two rounds of trumps stopping in his own hand. Then he finessed the diamond, cashed dummy's king, returned to his own hand while a trump, discarded a heart on the diamond ace, entered dummy with the ace of clubs, led a heart and finessed the ten.

West was in the lead and had to either give Morty a ruff and discard or lead away from his king of hearts.

The diamond finessee was necessary so that there would be a trump left in dummy when West was thrown in the lead but the really interesting play was when Morty drew only two rounds of trumps.

If he had played three rounds before taking the diamond finesse he would have been forced eventually to lead the first heart from his own hand. This would not have hurt him since West held both the king and jack but Morty was able to guard against all heart combinations with his play.

Advent Of Atom-Plane Speeded

New, Radiation-Resistant Rubber Solves Weight Problem

By Ray Cromley
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A strange new kind of rubber just developed may revolutionize atomic travel and atomic defense.

It promises to make feasible an atom-powered airplane within the next three to four years.

It eventually will make possible atom-powered tanks, trains, and conceivably an atom-powered automobile.

It may speed man's space travel by years.

It will make it practical for the first time to make key buildings in major cities virtually radiation-proof, thus save millions of lives in the event of a Soviet nuclear attack on the U.S.

* * *

The new rubber, developed by Goodyear Tire and Rubber, is light in weight but absorbs radiation and withstands very low and very high temperatures.

Its major value is its lightness. The great barrier today in building an atomic plane is weight. It now takes a great deal of very heavy lead shielding to protect the crew. These dead shields would make an atomic plane so heavy it couldn't go very fast, nor carry very much.

This weight handicap likewise, would make atomic tanks, atomic space ships, trains, or small atomic submarines impractical. The great amount of shielding necessary today would make the radiation-proofing of large numbers of buildings so expensive as to be ridiculous.

The new rubber contains a large amount of hydrogen to slow down the neutrons, and a sizeable amount of powdered metal, to stop the neutrons dead once the hydrogen has slowed them. Only a thin layer of lead behind the rubber is necessary to stop the gamma rays, the X-ray type.

Alpha and beta rays are no worry.

* * *

It's the hard-hitting neutrons that are today's major problem. It takes a very thick lead shield to stop them. They do a man a lot of damage. Gamma rays are devastating to man, too, but behind this rubber shield, a thin lead layer is enough.

The rubber is light, inexpensive. It can be poured into place and made solid there.

Goodyear men are toying with the idea of pouring it between the outer and inner walls of large buildings—as contractors pump insulation into an old house. The rubber would be allowed to set. Thin lead shielding could be attached without great difficulty. Thus, at relatively low cost, the men and women in a building could be protected.

Of course, anyone too close to an atomic explosion would still be killed by the blast.

The new rubber likewise offers possibilities for protecting rescue workers in radioactive areas after an attack. Emergency automobiles and trucks could be covered with the new material. They'd be able to rush into a radioactive area quickly. Rescue workers could wear suits of the rubber with hood. With the lead lining, they'd be rather clumsy, but safe.

There's even hope that some day a practical lighter-weight, radiation-proof suit can be developed for shock troops, combat soldiers who would push quickly into dangerously-radioactive areas.

DR. G. E. MEYER pours the new radiation-resistant rubber at room temperature. Next to the beaker is a piece of the rubber-ized shielding. Meyer heads the group that developed the material at Goodyear Tire and Rubber.

Fire Destroys Large Chandlerville Home

CHANDLERVILLE—The large two story modern farm home located five miles east of Chandlerville, owned and farmed by Frank Brune, was completely burned with all the contents at 4 p.m. Thursday. Mr. Brune lives in Virginia.

The home is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Nelson and two daughters, age 7 and 10. Mrs. Nelson and one of her daughters were visiting at the home of Mrs. Robert Wildt, who lives nearby, at the time of the fire. The older daughter was attending a Brownie Scout meeting.

Mr. Nelson was working in a field quite a distance from the house. Melvin Barrett, neighbor, was among the first to see the smoke and soon flames were gushing through the windows. The origin of the fire has not been determined, but it is believed to have started in the kitchen.

The Chandlerville fire department was summoned and neighbors came but the house was too far gone to save anything. The Nelsons had recently bought new furniture and Mrs. Nelson had just finished putting 40 chickens in the deep freeze.

A collection of money and some clothing has already been given the Nelsons and they will be helped in housing by staying with their many friends and neighbors until adequate living quarters can be found.

Summer Beauty Has Cautious Start

Hair Responds To Hot Day's Care

A salon permanent is the basis for this summer hairdo which will get a gal comfortably through hot weather. It looks simple but it's based on expert cutting and setting. Hair is not parted (left). It's combed straight back from the forehead (center) and swirled over the ears (right). Wispy bangs cover the forehead. It's a hairdo that a gal can handle at home herself once she's watched an expert set it. It will look smooth during working hours, can be dressed up with flowers or glittering pins for evening. The salon permanent that is the basis for this hairdo will keep the curl despite the sea air at the beach or the high humidity of mid-summer. It also makes hair easy to manage.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

You don't have to hit a TV jackpot or bring in an oil well to get in the big money. Just invent some small gadget lots of people want . . . and you'll have a fortune you can't cart off in a wheelbarrow. The millworker who first got the idea of putting erasers on the end of a pencil garnered a cool $100,000. A prairie farmer invented barbed wire, and Gillette was a traveling salesman when he got the idea for his razor. The fellow who first made a kiddy car for his offspring patented the brainstorm and made a million. Find a new idea or a new twist for an old idea, and you're in. Let's see, now, if we bend this hairpin . . .

A Minnesota taxpayer pinned a note on his tax return . . . "The cannibals had a way of solving high taxes; they ate the tax collector." However, some people just can't stomach tax collectors. But all people who own cars will appreciate the efficiency of our service department. When we overhaul your motor you'll get fuller, faster power and greater driving satisfaction. We have the men, the experience and the equipment to put new life into your tired motor. Come in for a free estimate . . . E. W. Brown, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

"I inquired about your purse," Alex told her. "They'll let me know if they find anything. The money that was in travelers' checks may turn up, and they've alerted the banks. You can kiss the cash goodby, I'm afraid."

Kathie drooped, and Alex chuckled, "Don't look so downhearted. I've got housing for you for free."

Her head came swiftly up. "Alex, I can't let you—"

"Wait until you hear about it, darling. Did you ever dream of living on a houseboat?"

She stared at him. "It was one of my pet dreams."

"Well, I have a little cabin cruiser tied up at a buoy in the yacht basin. Electric plate and refrigerator. A private shower, and you can take your choice of four bunks. You won't be alone out there. You'll have neighbors. The housing shortage has forced a lot of people to move out on their boats.

"There are some provisions out there now, and I've got a lot more in the car. After dinner, we'll take you out there."

Kathie's eyes were shining. "Oh, Alex, it sounds wonderful!"

John announced loudly, "Dinner is served!" and Alex jumped up, pulling her to her feet. They went hand in hand into the kitchenette where John had set a tiny table.

Alex deliberately dallied over the meal.

He left the apartment on an unexplained errand. When he returned, he was somewhat breathless. "I'll take you to the boat now," he told Kathie. "John will you help me carry down the luggage?"

"Sure thing!" John said cheerfully. But when Kathie got up to follow them, Alex said, "Kathie, you wait here until I come for you." At her look, he added hastily, "I'll explain later. Just do as I say for now."

• • •

In a few moments he came running silently up the stairs and entered the room. "Quick!" he said.

He took her out the kitchen door and down the back stairs. John had the car waiting there, without lights. Alex put her in and whispered, "Get down on the floor."

John traded places with Alex then, behind the wheel, and Alex put the car in motion.

Crouched low, Kathie began to understand. The boat wasn't only a place for her to live rent free; it was to be a hideout.

As though he could read her thoughts, Alex said, "It's nothing, Kathie. It's just being extra careful. We didn't dream anyone was watching the airport. Yet someone followed us to the bank—or had anticipated we would go there. I couldn't find anyone spying around the apartment, but I'm going to take a few wild loops around town just in case someone is trying to follow us now. And I want you to keep out of sight."

This isn't really happening, Kathie thought. I'm not actually here, hiding on the floor of a man's car while he drives me through the streets of Honolulu. In a moment I'll wake up back on the farm and hear Uncle Job calling me to get up—

It was very dark along the yacht basin and Alex said, excited laughter coloring his voice, "You can come up for air now, Kathie."

She climbed up on the seat gratefully, her limbs cramped. They were driving down an unlighted dirt road. On their left were parked cars. On the right was the water, invisible but making faint slapping sounds against the pilings.

Only bobbing lights marked the boats, with here and there a lighted porthole, but dark as it was, Kathie could see that these were no flat scows of houseboats, but trim seagoing craft.

• • •

He grinned through the dusk and said, "She's the love of my life, you know. Ever think you'd be competing with a boat?"

Kathie drew a quick breath. "Me, Alex?"

He laughed, that excited note still in his voice, and Kathie began to lose her feeling of apprehension and to feel a high sense of adventure. After all, hadn't she spent hours back on the farm dreaming up adventures that were tame and dull compared with this?

"Here we are," Alex said abruptly, without answering her question.

Then gradually she made out a tiny pier about 12 inches wide extending out over the dark water.

"My dinghy's tied up here," Alex explained. "You stay here while I carry out some of the loot."

She sat in the car while he made several trips with boxes of groceries and small pieces of luggage. Across the dark water came the sound of laughter.

When he had her settled among the boxes, he took up the oars. She listened to the quiet plop! plop! they made as he rowed out between the dark and silent moored boats, and thought what a pleasant sound it was.

The boat loomed, a dar' mass above them. He tied up alongside. "I'll go aboard first and put on the lights."

He clambered up and Kathie sat in the dinghy.

She listened to the strange sounds around her, the scrape of the dinghy against the boat as the slow current washed it forward, back, then forward again—the slap of the buoy rope against the water—incredibly, the faint meow of a kitten from some nearby boat.

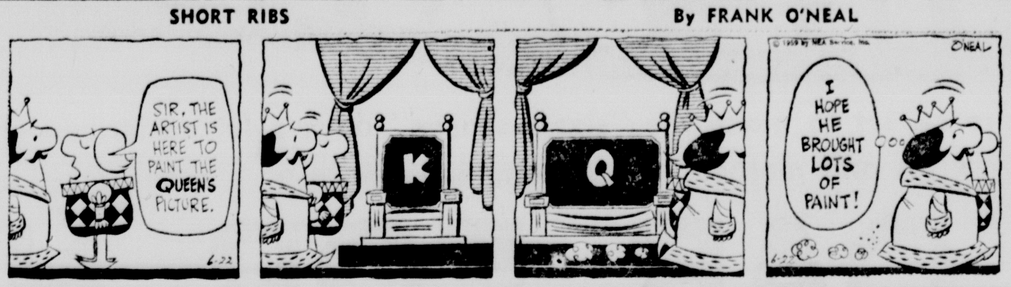

Finally lights came on in the cabin, and Alex came back, silhouetted against them. "Can you hand up the loot now?"
